NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED.

A BILE BEAN VICTORY.

Mrs. Holdsworth, of Easy Terrace, Richmond Hill, Leeds, has had an experience which, fortunately, few mortals are called upon to endure. For a period of between five and six years she has been struggling under ill-health; and never completely out of the hands of the medical practitioner. How long she could have continued her programme it is impossible to say, but she at last stumbled across a remedy so eminently simple, cheap, and efficacious that she had persistently ignored it for more complex and more costly curatives which in the end proved not to be remedies at all. At the present time she is better than she has been for years. It came about in this way. About six years ago she began to suffer from nervous debility, and gradually grew worse until she could not hold a plate in her hand, and could not stand to wash one. At last, when she was so bad that she could not stand, and was in momentary fear of a stroke, a doctor was called in, and prophesied a long and severe illness. And so it proved. Her daughters had to take charge of all the housework, as she was absolutely unable to stir a hand in that direction. "I could not lift a pan or a kettle from the fire," she says, "or hold anything, if I had been paid ever so much for doing it."

BILE BEANS

Then several other ailments began to appear. To use her own words: —“ I began to have pains in my head, dizziness, and such queer sensations. If I walked a yard I had to cling hold of something, for I felt as if I was falling. Indigestion troubled me fearfully, and my food gave me terrible pain. I got into a shocking state. This went on for five years, and you can imagine what I was reduced to. One day a neighbour recommended me to try some beans, which she had been taking, and which had done her good. I got some, and it really seemed as if they went straight to the place. The first box cured me of dizziness, and then I began to have no more pain after meals. By degrees the indigestion left me altogether, and then I gradually got stronger. They called the medicine Charles Forde's 'Bile Beans,' and by taking these I have reaped more good during the past six months than I did from all the medicine I took in the six years before. I am now better than I have been for years, and, what is best, I can do my work. They are certainly a fine medicine, and I don't mind you stating my case as an example of what they can cure.”

I CAN NOW DO MY WORK.

CONSTIPATION AND INDIGESTION CURED.

Station Hill, Wigton, Cumberland,

July 7th, 1900.

To the BILE BEAN MANUFACTURING Co.

Dear Sirs,—I am happy to say I have found the greatest benefit by taking your BILE BEANS. My ailments were chiefly constipation and indigestion, and I would not be without BILE BEANS, as I have found such benefit by their use. I have also recommended them to my friends, and spoken very highly of them, because of the good they have done me.

If this statement is of any use you can publish it.

Yours truly,

(Signed) E. JOHNSON.

BILE BEANS

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

IN all parts of the world, BILE BEANS FOR BILIOUSNESS have earned for themselves by their unequalled excellence a reputation which places them to-day far in advance of any other similar preparation. This specific is not a carelessly prepared nostrum ; on the contrary, it is the result of long and thoughtful research on the part of an Australian Chemist, who, after years of study, discovered a natural vegetable substance which after further study he succeeded in compounding with other ingredients, so that its effect on the digestive organism of the human system is identical with that of the natural bile created by the liver. Finding this, then, to be the most natural cathartic obtainable, the public rapidly accepted it in preference to all others, and consequently the old methods of starving and the use of pepsin and bismuth sank into insignificance and oblivion. Acting on the bowels in a gentle manner, Bile Beans do not weaken or in any way distress the patient. This is a point in which they differ materially from nearly all laxative remedies sold to-day, as the latter usually act in a violent manner, weakening the patient, and in many cases doing more harm than good.

CHARLES FORDE'S BILE BEANS FOR BILIOUSNESS

Have been found an undoubted cure for Headache, Influenza, Costiveness, Piles, Liver Trouble, Bad Breath, Rheumatism, Liver Chill, Indigestion, Constipation, Debility, Anæmia, Female Ailments, Pimples, and all ailments arising from defective bile flow, assimilation, and digestion. Bile Beans are obtainable of all Chemists, or Post-Free from THE BILE BEAN MANUFACTURING CO., 119 and 120, London Wall, London, E.C., on receipt of price, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. large box, containing three times small size ; three large boxes, 7s. 6d., or six for 14s.

BILE BEANS

BILIOUSNESS AND HOW TO CURE IT.

A more common and annoying complaint than Biliousness it is hard to find. It prohibits the sufferer from doing work of any kind, holding a conversation, or even resting quietly; not only this, but the nausea is most disagreeable, and the taste and breath are exceedingly offensive. It is an ailment caused by a surcharge of bile becoming stagnant in the stomach, and is generally accompanied by Indigestion and Constipation, vomiting, and a yellow appearance of the complexion. Dizziness and violent headaches are usual symptoms. The bile is the natural purgative of the body, and is secreted by the liver; if it fails to flow in its usual channels, or to perform its usual duties, the liver is responsible. A remedy should be applied at once that will act in an efficient manner, and the remedy to take is BILE BEANS, which are compounded expressly for ailments of this sort. They are so prepared that they act directly on the liver, helping it to help itself, and enabling it to secrete enough bile to flush the bowels thoroughly, and thus clear off all waste and offensive matter from the system. This remedy is well known, and is conceded the most mild and effective medicine of the age. It does not afford mere temporary relief, but an absolute and lasting cure. It sells on its merits alone.

A FREE SAMPLE.

The Proprietors of CHARLES FORDE'S BILE BEANS FOR BILIOUSNESS have so much faith in the power of their remedy to do what is claimed for it that they willingly send a free sample if a penny stamp (to cover return postage) is enclosed with coupon to the BILE BEAN MANUFACTURING CO.'S Central Distributing Depôt, Greek Street, Leeds.

BILE BEANS

POST-OFFICE INFORMATION.

LETTER POST.

To and from all parts of the United Kingdom the prepaid rates are:—

Not exceeding 4 oz. in weight 1d. For every additional 2 oz. ½d. A letter posted unpaid will be charged on delivery with double postage, and a letter posted insufficiently prepaid will be charged with double the deficiency.—No letter may exceed two feet in length, one foot in width, or one foot in depth, unless it be sent to or from a Government office.

The charge for the re-direction of letters has been abolished. The Postal Union Postage rate is ¾d. per ½ oz.

IMPERIAL PENNY POSTAGE.

A letter postage of 1d. per ½ oz. is now established between the United Kingdom, Canada, Cape Colony, Newfoundland, India, Natal, and other British Possessions and Protectorates.

POSTAGE ON INLAND REGISTERED NEWSPAPERS.

Prepaid Rates.—For each Registered Newspaper, whether posted singly or in a packet—One Half-penny; but a packet containing two or more Registered Newspapers is not chargeable with a higher rate of postage than would be chargeable on a Book-Packet or letter of the same weight.

No Newspaper, whether posted singly or in a packet, may contain any enclosure except the supplement or supplements belonging to it.

REGISTRATION AND COMPENSATION.

By the prepayment of a fee of twopence any postal packet (parcels included) may be registered to any place in the United Kingdom. Every packet to be registered must be given to an agent of the Post-Office and a receipt obtained for it. The Postmaster-General will give compensation up to a maximum limit of £120 for the loss and damage of Inland Postal Packets of all kinds. The ordinary registration fee of 2d. secures £5; 3d., £10; 4d., £20; 5d., £30; 6d., £40; 7d., £50; 8d., £60; 9d., £70; 10d., £80; 11d., £90; 1s., £100; 1s. 1d., £110; 1s. 2d., £120.

REGISTERED LETTER ENVELOPES

are sold at all Post-Offices, and by Rural Messengers, according to size, from 2½d. to 3d. each.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL SAMPLE POST.

This post is absolutely restricted to bona fide trade Samples and Scientific Specimens. The rate of postage is ½d. per 2 oz., except that the lowest charge is 1d., for which sum, however, a weight of 4 oz. may be sent.

POST AND LETTER CARDS.

Post Cards for use in the United Kingdom only are sold at 10 for 5½d., or of finer quality 10 for 6d. They can be had in smaller numbers or singly. Foreign Post Cards, 1d.; Reply, 2d.

Stout Reply Post Cards are sold at 1½d. each, or ten for 1s. Thin Reply Post Cards are charged 1½d. each, or ten for 11d.

Letter Cards are sold at 8 for 9d.; smaller numbers in proportion.

INLAND PARCEL POST.

For an Inland Postal Parcel the rate of postage, to be prepaid in ordinary postage stamps, is—

	s.	d.
Not exceeding in weight 1lb.	0	3
Excdg. 1lb. & not excdg. 2lbs.	0	4
" 2lbs. "	"	0 5
" 3lbs. "	"	0 6
" 4lbs. "	"	0 7
" 5lbs. "	"	0 8
" 6lbs. "	"	0 9
" 7lbs. "	"	0 10
" 8lbs. "	"	0 11
" 9lbs. "	"	1 0

Maximum length allowed for a postal parcel is 3 feet 6 inches; maximum length and girth combined, 6 feet. Examples:—A parcel measuring 3 feet 6 inches in its longest dimension may measure as much as 2 feet 6 inches in girth, i.e. around its thickest part; or—a short parcel may be thicker, e.g. if measuring no more than 3 feet in length, it may measure as much as 3 feet in girth, i.e. around its thickest part.

The Regulations under which certain Articles are prohibited from transmission by the Letter Post—with a few exceptions—apply equally to the Parcel Post. For instance—Gunpowder, Lucifer Matches, anything liable to sudden combustion, bladders containing liquid, and Live Animals, except bees, are excluded from the Parcel Post.

Certificates of posting of parcels can be obtained gratis.

FOREIGN PARCEL POST.

A Parcel Post service has been established between the United Kingdom and many Foreign countries and the British Colonies and Foreign Possessions generally. For rates and other conditions, see the Post Office Guide, published quarterly.

INLAND BOOK POST.

The Book-Post is now limited to packets not exceeding 2 oz. in weight. For this weight the charge is ½d.

If a Book-Packet is posted unpaid, double postage is charged on delivery.

Every Book-Packet must be posted either without a cover or in an unfastened envelope, or in a cover which can be easily removed for the purposes of examination.

No Book-Packet may exceed 2 feet in length or 1 foot in breadth or depth.

Beyond the weight of 2 oz. there is now no distinction between letters, samples, and books. All go at the rate of 1d. for not exceeding 4 oz., and ½d. for every additional 2 oz.

MONEY ORDERS.

Money Orders are granted in the United Kingdom as follows:—

For sums not exceeding £1, 2d.; above £1 and not exceeding £3, 3d. £3 £10, 4d.

"Money may" be sent by Telegraph Money Order at the following rates:—

For sums not exceeding £3, 4d.; above £3 and not exceeding £10, 6d.

In addition to the commission a charge is made at the ordinary inland rate for the official telegram authorising payment, the minimum being 6d.

POSTAL ORDERS.

Postal Orders are now issued at all Money Order Offices in the United Kingdom at the following fixed sums:—

1s. and 1s. 6d., ½d.; 2s., 2s. 6d., 3s., 3s. 6d., 4s., 4s. 6d., 5s., 7s. 6d., 10s., and 10s. 6d., 1d.; 15s. and 20s., ½d.

MONEY ORDERS PAYABLE ABROAD.

Foreign Orders are issued at the following rates:—

If payable in Belgium, Denmark, Danish West Indies, Dutch East India Possessions, Egypt, France, German Empire, Holland, Iceland, Italy, Japan, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, the United States, &c., or the British Possessions and Colonies:—

On sums not exceeding
£2 0s. 6d. | £10 1s. 6d.
£6 1s. 0d. |

POSTAL TELEGRAMS.

The charge for telegrams throughout the United Kingdom is 6d. for the first 12 words, and ½d. for every additional word. Addresses are charged for. A receipt for the charges can be obtained at a cost of 2d.

POST-OFFICE SAVINGS BANKS.

Deposits of one shilling upwards will be received from any depositor at the Post-Office Savings Banks, provided the deposits made by such depositor in any year ending the 31st December do not exceed £50, and provided the total amount does not exceed £200 inclusive of interest. Separate accounts may be opened in the names of wife and children.

"TAKE CARE OF THE PENCE."

At every Post-Office in the United Kingdom forms can be obtained, free of charge, on which twelve penny postage stamps can be fixed; and when the form has been thus filled up with twelve penny stamps, it will be received at any Post-Office Savings Bank as a savings bank deposit for 1s.

STOCKS CAN BE BOUGHT

at any Post-Office Savings Bank. Any depositor who wishes can invest in Government Stock at the current price of the day. The amount of stock which can be purchased or sold at one time is now reduced to the nominal sum of 1s. A small sum is charged by way of commission on investment and sale.

INTERESTING GLEANINGS AND GATHERINGS.

THE first almanack in England was printed at Oxford in 1673.

HAVING dreamed that you are dead, you will be free from care. Such was a current opinion of the ancient Greeks, and it still prevails with some superstitious persons.

WHITE in China is an emblem of evil and sorrow.

TIMES GO BY TURNS.

*The sea of fortune does not ever flow,
She draws her favours to the lowest ebb;
Her tides have equal times to come and go,
Her loom doth weave the fine and coarsest web:
No joy so great but runneth to an end,
No hope so hard but may in time amend.*

ROBERT SOUTHWELL (1562—1595).

THE late Prince Bismarck had grey eyes in deep sockets almost hidden by bushy eyebrows.

A CHARITABLE lady asked a poor woman in Ireland whether she was a widow. The answer she got was: "Deed, mem, A'm in the worst soort o' a wudda; I'm an old maid."

CHARACTER.

*The purest treasure mortal times afford
Is spotless reputation; that away,
Men are but gilded loam or painted clay.*

THE epitaph on Charles Knight, the publisher, suggested by Douglas Jerrold, was "Good Knight!"

COUNT BEUGNOT was the real author of the famous phrase, "Nothing is altered in France; there is only one Frenchman more," which was popularly attributed to the Comte d'Artois, afterwards Charles X.

JOHN WILKES was admitted, even by himself, to be the ugliest man in all England, but no woman whom he chose to address could resist him.

FRANKLIN said, "He who rises late may trot all day, and not have overtaken his business at night." Dean Swift declared that he "never knew any man come to greatness and eminence who lay in bed of a morning."

SPECTACLES were first used in the latter part of the thirteenth century. There is no certainty as to who was the inventor of them, but the distinction is generally claimed for Alessandro di Spina, who is said to have made some about 1285.

QUEEN

ELIZABETH was cutting up a goose when she learned that the Spanish Armada had been cut up by a Drake.

SHARP EYES.

*Lovers' eyes more sharply sighted be Light Than other men's, and in dear love's de-
See more than any other eyes can see.*

THE following, allowing P.C. to stand for Princess Charlotte, is an excellent anagram: "Princess Charlotte Augusta of Wales, P.C. Her august race is lost. O fatal news!"

How did the Isle of Dogs come by its unpleasant name? Among the many theories advanced in solution of the question may be mentioned that of Maitland, who writes in 1766 that the Isle of Dogs was first so denominated by sailors from the great noise made by the King's hounds that were kept there during the residence of the Royal family at Greenwich.

IN 1802 Jean Jacques Rousseau's advice regarding women voiced that of the times. It was this:—"The education of women should always be relative to that of men. To please, to be useful to us, to make us love and esteem them, to educate us when young, to take care of us when grown up, to advise, to console us, to render our lives easy and agreeable; these are the duties of women at all times, and what they should be taught from their infancy."

COMPARISONS.

*As pure as an angel,
As neat as a pin,
As smart as a steel trap,
As ugly as sin,
As dead as a door nail,
As white as a sheet,
As flat as a pancake,
As red as a beet,
As poor as a church mouse,
As thin as a rail,
As fat as a porpoise,
As rough as a gale,
As brave as a lion,
As spry as a cat,
As bright as a siopence,
As weak as a rat,
As proud as a peacock,
As sly as a fox,
As mad as a March hare,
As strong as an ox,
As fair as a lily,
As empty as air,
As rich as was Cræsus,
As cross as a bear.*

AN OLD SIGN.

*Stay, traveller, come in here;
There's bread and cheese and good old beer.
You may a pipe take, if you please,
Likewise a chair to sit at ease.*

RANDOM WORDS.

*Oh! many a shaft, at random sent Finds mark the archer little meant;
And many a word at random spoken
May soothe or wound a heart that's broken.*

THE RULE OF THE ROAD.

*The rule of the road is a paradox quite;
For in driving your carriage along,
If you bear to the left you are sure to go right,
If you turn to the right you go wrong.*

*But in walking the streets 'tis a different case:
To the right it is proper to steer;
On the left there should be enough of clear space
For the people who wish to walk there.*

THE following advertisement appeared lately in a paper published in a town near Brisbane:—"Permanent.—Wanted, a man to look after one horse and a few cows and pigs. One who can impart the rudiments of French and German conversation, singing, and the piano to children preferred."

MR. KIPLING has expressed the opinion that, though short stories may be written in youth, the novel must be the work of maturity.

THE summit of Aconcagua in the Andes is the most lofty point of the earth's surface yet touched by the human foot. It is half as high again as Mount Blanc.

SIR WALTER SCOTT suffered as a child from what is known as infantile paralysis, which left him with a limp for the rest of his life. But this imperfection of gait did not prevent him, as we learn from "Redgauntlet," doing the "kittle nine steps" on the slope of Edinburgh Castle Rock, where Scott and his fellow-pupils at the Royal High School put their lives in daily jeopardy.

It was once, and still may be, the custom of Highland women to salute the new moon with a solemn courtesy. English country dames were wont to sit aside a stile or gate, waiting the new moon's appearance, to welcome her with: "A fine moon, God bless her!"

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS.

*Care keeps his watch in ev'ry old man's eye,
And where care lodgeth sleep will never lie.*

SHAKESPEARE.

ADMIRAL NELSON had two acquired deformities. He lost the sight of an eye, and had also to have an arm amputated in consequence of a wound received in battle.

EARLY TO REST.

*Is it not better at an early hour
In its calm cell to rest the weary head,
While birds are singing, and while blooms the bower,
Than sit the fire out, and go starved to bed?*

W. S. LANDOL.

GIRLS who wish to have small, pretty shaped mouths should repeat at frequent intervals during the day, "Fanny Finch fried five floundering fish for Francis Fowler's father."

BE CAUTIOUS.

*More firm and sure the hand of courage strikes
When it obeys the watchful eye of caution.*

THE handwriting of the great Napoleon was a curiosity. His letters to Josephine from Germany were first taken for rough maps of the seat of war. Speaking of him, Francis of Austria said: "I always thought he would end badly, he wrote such a villainous hand."

Two little London girls who had been sent by the kindness of the vicar's wife to have "a happy day in the country," narrating their experiences on their return, said: "Oh, yes, mum; we did 'ave a 'appy day. We saw two pigs killed and a gentleman buried."

THERE is no name for the cat in Hebrew, or any mention of it in the Bible; nor does it exist on the Babylonian and Assyrian monuments.

DREAMING.

*Dreams are the children of an idle brain,
Begot of nothing but vain Fantasy;
Which is as thin of substance as the air,
And more inconstant than the wind.*

"It is hardly possible," says Dr. Johnson, in his memorable criticism on "Hudibras," "to peruse a page without finding some association of ideas that was never found before. By the first paragraph the reader is amused, by the next he is delighted and by a few more strained to astonishment."

A FAMOUS PIG.

THERE is a monument erected to the memory of a pig at Lunenburg in Hanover, in the Hotel de Ville there the eye of the visitor is attracted by a slab of black marble, bearing the following inscription in letters of gold:—

Passer-by, contemplate here the mortal remains of which acquired for itself imperishable glory by the discovery of the Salt Springs of Lunenburg.

A PARODY.

THE well-known "Brook" by Tennyson was once cleverly parodied by Calverley. Here is a specimen stanza:—
*I loiter down by thorp and town;
For any job I'm willing;
Take here and there a dusty brown,
And here and there a shilling.*

SCOTT published "Waverley" at forty-three; Galt "The Annals of the Parish" at forty-two; Peacock "Crotchet Castle" at forty-six; Thackeray "Vanity Fair" at thirty-six; Trollope began his Barsetshire series at forty; and Charles Reade wrote "The Cloister and the Hearth" at forty-six.

A GREAT ASTRONOMER.

THERE is a striking inscription to the great astronomer Copernicus in St. Ann's Church, Cracow:—

STA, SOL, NE MOVEARE
(He commanded the sun to stand still)

It is to the credit of the Japanese that there is no equivalent for cursing and swearing in their language. It is said that their strongest epithet is the word "fellow."

WITH the ancients the narcissus was a distinctly favourite flower, although on account of its highly poisonous properties they regarded it as typical of deceit, and dedicated it to Demeter and her daughter Hecate, Queen of Hades.

THERE is a famous mot constantly attributed to Lincoln when told that Grant was a drunkard—"Tell me the brand of whisky he uses, and I'll send a barrel to all the other generals." In reality the speech was invented by Charles G. Halpine (Miles O'Reilly) in a burlesque account of an imaginary banquet in New York over which he made Lincoln preside.

DRIVE AWAY CARE.

*Care when it once is enter'd in the breast
Will have the whole possession ere it rest.*

JOHNSON.

VOLTAIRE, with all his cleverness, would never have been chosen as a typical lover. He was ugly of feature, but capable of delighting women notwithstanding his ugliness.

THE READER.

*Dreams, books, are each a world; and books, we know,
Are a substantial world, both pure and good;
Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
Our pastime and our happiness will grow.*

WORDSWORTH.

CARLYLE'S definition of genius was anticipated by Buffon in his address on being admitted into the Academy. He said: "Le genie n'est autre chose qu'une grand aptitude à la patience."

LIGHT-MINDED.

*If thy foot were as light as thy mind, I declare
In a course we should see thee outstripping the hare.*

THE Duke of Wellington had blue hawk's eyes.

PROBABLY the most precocious novel in its way ever written was "The Ordeal of Richard Feveril," written when Mr. Meredith was about thirty.

CHINA has still, in many parts of the country, the old-fashioned system of private letter carrying. If he has a letter to send, the Chinaman goes to a letter shop and bargains with the keeper thereof. He pays two-thirds of the cost, leaving the receiver to pay the rest on delivery.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

It is advisable that a man should know at least three things—First, where he is; secondly, where he is going; thirdly, what he had best do under the circumstances.—RUSKIN.

1.—The custom of making presents on New Year's Day was no doubt derived from the Romans. Suetonius and Tacitus both mention it.

2.—By a chance circumstance was Galileo's attention directed to the equal duration of the oscillation of the pendulum. Happening to be one day in the cathedral of Pisa, he remarked the regulated and periodical motion of a lamp suspended from the roof of the nave.

By repeated experiments, he confirmed the fact of the equal duration of its oscillation, and at once comprehended that this phenomenon might be employed to serve as an exact measure of time. Fifty years afterwards he made use of this idea for the construction of a clock intended for astronomical observations.

17.—Franklin regarded work as the crowning joy of character. "When men are engaged," he said, "they are best conducted." "The consciousness of having done a good day's work," he said, "made people good-natured and cheerful. To cheat at work by scamping it, or giving improper workmanship, was to work for bad wages, whatever payment he received. A jolly evening follows a day of thorough labour. Multitudinous and quarrelsome men prove themselves dishonest workers. Their work is not right, their bread is not right, their quarters are not right, because they are not honest men."

One thing controlled all his conduct—viz., a scorn of dishonesty. He would have no praise for what others had suggested to him, nor would he take for work one penny which was not fairly his. In these respects he loved his neighbour as himself.

20.—The celebrated actor David Garrick was well aware of the advantages of self-advertisement. After his death in 1779, his widow was talking to a rising actor. "Why," she said, "don't you write your own notices? Davy always did."

23.—Coolness in times of crisis is a very desirable gift. In one of his recent speeches, Lord Rosebery tells the story of how William Pitt slept through the most critical incident in English history. It was when we were fighting the greatest military power in Europe, France, when we had to do all we could to hold our own with every resource at our disposal, and when all of a sudden mutiny broke out at the North. That paralysed our one remaining arm.

At that time William Pitt was Prime Minister. He had gone to bed at night, but his colleagues came to him and roused him with the intelligence that not merely was the mutiny spreading, but that the mutineers were marching on TRUTH FOR EVER.

THE truth will out.
TRUTH conquers all things.
TRUTH creeps not in corners.
The language of truth is simple.
THE truth is the best advocate.

TRUTH is bitter food.
TRUTH is God's daughter.
TRUTH is a means, not an end.
TRUTH is always straightforward.
It is truth that makes a man angry.

A KING WITH A HASTY TEMPER.

London, and to resist them there was no sufficient force at all. To many men that would have seemed the break up of the British Empire.

He received them, and gave what instructions seemed fit, and then they went away. A quarter of an hour after (they had forgotten something) they came back, and they found him sound asleep.

25.—There are a score of word-portraits of Burns. Sir Walter Scott's, so well known, is one of the best.

Here is the last living one, and one of the most curious: "He was brought back in a covered spring cart, and when he alighted at the foot of the street in which he lived he could scarcely stand upright. He reached his door with difficulty; he stooped much, and there was a visible change in his looks. Some may think it not unimportant to know that he was at that time dressed in a blue coat, with the undress nankin pantaloons of the Volunteers, and that his neck, which was inclining to be short, caused his hat to turn up behind in the manner of the shovel hats of the Episcopal clergy. Truth obliges me to add that he was not fastidious about his dress."

30.—The last public sitting of the Court which tried Charles I. was held on the 27th of January. They had agreed upon the sentence, which Bradshaw, the "Lord President," then announced. The King desired, before it was given, to meet the two Houses in the Painted Chamber. After consultation, this was refused. The sentence was read from a long roll of vellum. It was "that his head should be severed from his body," each of the commissioners testifying his assent by standing up.

The King exclaimed, "Will you hear me a word, sir?"

"Sir," replied Bradshaw, "you are not to be heard after the sentence."

"No, sir?" exclaimed the King.

"No, sir, by your favour," replied Bradshaw. "Guards, withdraw your prisoner."

Charles then exclaimed again, with deep emotion, "I may speak after the sentence! By your favour, sir, I may speak after the sentence! Even, by your favour—"

"Hold!" said Bradshaw sternly, signing to the guards.

JANUARY PROVERBS.

*Remember on St. Vincent's day,
If that the sun his beams display,
Be sure to mark his transient beam
Which through the casement sheds a gleam;*

*For 'tis a token bright and clear
Of prosperous weather all the year.*

*If the grass grow in Janiver,
It grows the worse for 't all the year.*

*If St. Paul's be fair and clear,
It betides a happy year;*

*If on St. Paul's day it doth rain,
Dear will be the price of grain*

*The blackest month of all the year
Is the month of Janiver.*

March in Janiver, Janiver in March I fear.

SPEAKING of great captains, Napoleon, who must be allowed to be a capable judge, made out eight of them.

It was a list which began with Alexander and ended with himself. Amongst the eight was Gustavus Adolphus, the famous King of Sweden, who with small means was called upon to do much, but whose genius eked out the deficiency.

He was a man of splendid courage. On taking leave of his subjects to embark in the German war, we find him saying:

"I know the perils, the fatigues, the difficulties of the undertaking, yet I am not dismayed by the wealth of the House of Austria nor by her veteran forces. And if it is the will of the Supreme Being that Gustavus should die in the defence of the faith, he pays the tribute with thankful acquiescence; for it is a king's duty and his religion to obey the great Sovereign of Kings without a murmur."

Gustavus was sincerely religious. On the landing of his expedition on the Island of Usedom, he retired a little from his officers, and fell upon his knees and prayed. Observing a sneering expression on the faces of some of the officers, he said to them:

"A good Christian will never make a bad soldier. A man that has finished his prayers has at least completed one-half of his daily work."

The Scotch subjects of Charles I. of England felt great sympathy with Gustavus, and many of them entered his service. Various differences of opinion have been recorded as taking place between the Scotchmen and Gustavus, in all of which the king showed himself a man of moral courage, not afraid to apologise for and take back his hasty words.

One Colonel Seton was mortally offended at receiving a slap in the face from the king. He demanded and received instant dismissal from the Swedish service. He was riding off towards Denmark when the king overtook him.

"Seton," he said, "I see you are greatly offend'd with me, and I am sorry for what I did in haste. I have a high regard for you, and have followed you expressly to offer you all the satisfaction due to a brother officer. Here are two swords and two pistols; choose which weapon you please, and you shall avenge yourself against me."

This was too great an appeal to Seton's magnanimity. He broke out with renewed expressions of the utmost devotion to the king, and the two rode back to camp together.

Another Scottish officer, Hepburn, declared with fury to Gustavus that he "would never again unsheath his sword in the Swedish quarrel." But he did so, and was made Governor of Munich.

Douglas, a Scotchman who had enrolled himself in the Swedish army in 1623, behaved in so unpardonable a manner in Munich as to cause his arrest. Sir Henry Vane, the British Ambassador to Sweden, approached Gustavus and demanded the release of Douglas.

"By heaven!" replied the king, "if you speak another syllable on the subject of that man, I will order him to be hanged." Presently, however, he said, "I now release him on your parole; but I will not be affronted a second time. The fellow is a rascal, and I do not choose to be served by such animals!"

"May it please your majesty, I have always understood that the subjects of the king my master have rendered you most faithful services."

"Yes, I acknowledge that the people of your nation have served me well," replied the king; "but this dog concerning whom we are talking has affronted me, and I am resolved to chastise him!"

Within a few moments he had grown calmer and said: "Sir, I request you not to take offence at what has dropped from me. It was the effect of a warm and hasty temper. I am now cool again, and beseech you to pardon me."

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

No waste of time is so lavish as that which is the result of drifting, and there is no way in which people squander it more.

2.—There is an old proverb about Candlemas Day to the effect that "If the sun shines 't' the forenoon, Winter is not half done."

3.—Lord Salisbury sat in the House of Commons from August 22, 1853, until April, 1868, and if he had remained in the popular Chamber (and but for the accident of his elder brother dying without issue he might have done so) he would, at the present moment, have been the "Father of the House of Commons," as no member of the existing House entered Parliament before 1857.

4.—The popular novelist Harrison Ainsworth did very well from a pecuniary point of view. A friend, writing to him in 1842, asked how much he made by his literary exertions in one year. In the course of his reply, Ainsworth says: "I will just put down the positive gains of last year:—

"Old St. Paul's".....£1,000 0 0
Editorship "Bentley" .. 612 0 0
For "Guy Faukes" 150 0 0
"Tower of London"
(about) 300 0 0

£2,062 0 0

by which you will see that I made upwards of £2,000 in that year. By similar exertions I could make the same amount in any year. ...
—W. HARRISON AINSWORTH."

5.—Here is a characteristic letter from Mr. Ruskin which was written to a Scottish clergyman about the time when Home Rule for Ireland was beginning to be seriously discussed, and was in answer to a question as to the bearing which Vaticanism, as previously exposed by Mr. Gladstone, might have on the safety and advisability of carrying out Home Rule proposals. As will be seen, it was more forcible than polite.

"Drumwood, Coniston, Lancashire,
"6th May, '86.

"Sir,—I did not reply to your first letter because its question was absurd. What Vaticanism or Protestantism may do is none of your, or any other Christian soul's, business. A Christian man's duty is to mind his own business—that which is under his hand and eye—and simply to be kind when he is in power, and patient when he is in subjection.—Your faithful servant, JOHN RUSKIN."

11.—Shrove Tuesday gets its name from the ancient practice in the Church of Rome of confessing sins and being shrived or shrove, i.e. obtaining absolution, on this day. Being the day prior to the beginning of Lent, it may occur on any one between the 2nd of February and the 8th of March.

12.—Darwin, the famous naturalist, was one day strolling up a mountain-path, and, gathering a little gem-like flower, was looking at it very carefully with his magnifying glass, when an old shepherd came up.

GOOD WIVES AND BAD WIVES.

A GOOD wife is worth gold.
BETTER no wife than a foolish one.
WIFE and children are bills of charges.
NEXT to no wife a good wife is best.
PRUDENT men choose frugal wives.
HE who takes a wife takes a master.
WISDOM in the man, patience in the wife, bring peace to the house.

A WIFE speaks and spurs.
A GOOD wife is a good present.
STRIFE is the dowry of a wife.
WIVES must be had, be they good or bad.
To choose a wife two heads are not enough.
WHO has an office finds readily a wife.
AN obedient wife commands her husband.
HE draws a good wagonful into his farm who gets a good wife.

A FEW SCOTTISH GOLF STORIES.

The old man watched him for some time, and then said, "May I look, too, sir?"

So the glass was so arranged that the shepherd could see it.

Then he said, "May I look again, sir?"

After a long study the old man heaved a sigh and said, "Oh, dear! I wish I'd never looked through that glass."

"Why do you say that?" asked Darwin.

"Because," was the mournful reply, "I have to tread on thousands of 'em every day."

18.—With Lamb literature was never a crutch. He had time, he had choice; he could take the mood for writing, and—golden boon!—he could wait for it. Never had he need, at any time, to know what it was

"to pen many a line for bread; To joke, with sorrow aching in his head;

And make our laughter when his own heart bled."

Poor Elia knew what sorrow meant, better, perhaps, than most of us, and the fulness of heart out of which he joked was not always the fulness of laughter. But he had never need to know the mortal agony of writing for bread.

"Day after day the labour's to be done,

And sure as comes the postman and the sun,

The indefatigable ink must run."

That bitter experience was never his.

22.—Maj.-General Baden-Powell, who attracted so much attention by his heroic defence of Mafeking, entered the army in 1876, and has had much experience of active service. In 1900 he was made Chief of the Transvaal Police.

26.—To Moore, who was styled by Byron "the poet of all circles and the delight of his own," the following observations on Metastasio by Sismondi, are admirably appropriate:—

"No writer, perhaps, in any language has been ever so completely the poet of the heart and the poet of the women. The critics reproach him with not having portrayed the world either as it really is or as it ought to be; but the women defend him by replying that he has represented it such as they wish it to be."

A LAW OF LIFE.

Every man, every woman, every child has some talent, some power, some opportunity of getting good and doing good. Each day offers some occasion for using this talent. As we use it it gradually increases, improves, becomes native to the character. As we neglect it it dwindles, withers, and disappears. This is the stern but benign law by which we live. This makes character real and enduring.—JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE.

NO TRUST.

Oh, who would trust the world, or prize what's in it; That gives and takes, and chops and changes every minute.

QUARLES.

A DISTINGUISHED Scottish author who is famous for his erudition was once playing a wretched game, and in his humiliation appealed to the caddie in this strain:

"How is it that I, a man acquainted with all the arts and sciences, the dead and living languages, and all the faculties and attributes, cannot play this infernal game of golf?"

"Weel, sir," replied the caddie, "ye may ken a' about thae sma' affairs and things, but ye maun ken it tak's a man wi' a heid to play gowff!"

On a certain well-known course an accident once occurred, the golfer's ball striking a caddie on the head. With thoughts of manslaughter the gentleman ran forward, when he found the boy holding his left hand to his head, while with his right he pointed to the bunker and then to the ball, which was lying in an excellent position, and said:

"Oh, ay, you've a good lie, but if it hadna been for my heid it wad hae been in that bunker!"

A golfer who was not in the habit of playing his "lofting iron" with any measure of success managed on one occasion to send his ball particularly high, but very short.

"That's a good loft," he remarked. "Ay," rejoined the caddie; "it's a guid shot if the hole had been in heaven!"

A well-known Edinburgh architect was playing on the golf links at Musselburgh one day, when his ball landed in "Pandy"—a big bunker there. He was about to play it out, when a voice, in a stage whisper, came over the highest edge of the bunker: "Hi! gie's tippence an' I'll watch if he's lookin'," referring, of course, to the other player, who was away ahead.

The gentleman was just about to use his cleek when the voice again assailed him with:

"Hi! tee yer ba'—quick; he's no lookin'."

"No, no; go away, boy," said the golfer; "I must play my ball."

"My!" exclaimed the boy, in tones of utter contempt, as he moved off, "sie a fule; he'll never mak' a gowff!"

Most golfers will remember the story of the man whom a ball rendered insensible. The golfer gave him half-a-sovereign as some consolation.

"An' when will ye be playin' again?" asked the injured man as he looked at the coin.

A novice at golf, evidently belonging to the upper class, engaged a professional on the links at St. Andrews to carry for him, but after he had been but a hole or two, the caddie found to his surprise that the gentleman was a duffer, lacking up turf at every shot. At last he threw down the gentleman's clubs, exclaiming in disgust:

"There's yer sticks; dinna disgrace a professional!"

Some time ago a well-known literary man was taken by a friend to the golf course at St. Andrews to play his first round at the game. He didn't know a cleek from a driver, or a bunker from a putting green, but he managed to engineer his ball, and a considerable amount of turf along with it, about half-way round, when he got to the bottom of a deep bunker.

There he made several hundred tremendous strokes, broke one of his "sticks," as he called them, dug a hole a foot deep in the sand, and lost several pounds in weight in perspiration. Meanwhile the caddie stood wearily waiting. When it appeared that the infuriated novice was about to bring down the whole side of the bunker, the caddie approached him and said, in a confidential whisper:

"Pick it oot, sir, there's naeboddy lookin'."

And he did "pick it oot."

A player at golf had been skying his balls, much to the caddie's disgust. Carefully "teeing" the ball once more, the latter handed him the "driver," saying, "Noo, sir, let's see a guid shot, an' nae mair o' yer glory hallelujas."

1.—The treachery of the March sunshine is told in many a proverb: "The March sun entices you out to an ague" is an old country saying that expresses an undoubted truth.

"March sun lets snow stand on a stone" is another vivid version of the same idea. A dry month with cold winds is therefore the thing to desire.

"A damp and warm March makes a rotten year."

According to a North Country rhyme,

"March yeans the lammie,
And buds the thorn,
And blows through the flint
Of an ox's horn."

2.—One who knew Wesley well thus describes his appearance and manners:—"The figure of Mr. Wesley was remarkable. His stature was low; his habit of body, in every period of life, reverse of corpulent, and expressive of strict temperance and continual exercise; and his appearance, till within a few years of his death, vigorous and muscular.

"His face, for an old man, was one of the finest we have ever seen. A clear, smooth forehead; an aquiline nose; an eye the brightest and most piercing that can be conceived, and a freshness of complexion scarcely ever to be found at his years, and expressive of the most perfect health, combined to render him a venerable and interesting figure.

"Few have seen him without being struck with his appearance; and many who have been greatly prejudiced against him have been known to change their opinion the moment they were introduced into his presence.

"In dress he was a pattern of neatness and simplicity. A narrow plaited stock, a coat with a small upright collar, no buckles at his knees, no silk or velvet in any part of his apparel, and a head as white as snow, gave an idea of something primitive and apostolic; while an air of neatness and cleanliness was diffused over his whole person."

6.—Dr. Whewell, from his immense range of reading, was such an astonishingly fluent converser on all subjects that two gentlemen got an encyclopædia, and reading up an article on Chinese music hoped that they had discovered a topic of which he must be ignorant. To their surprise, on introducing it at table, they found him quite up in it; and, telling him what they had done, learned that he was the author of the article in question.

7.—Landseer, the famous animal painter, was once present at a party when the conversation turned upon feats of manual dexterity, and a lady exclaimed—

"Well, there is one thing nobody has ever done, and that is to draw two things at once."

"Oh, yes, I think I can do that," replied Landseer, and, with a pencil in each hand, he drew rapidly and simultaneously the profile of a stag's head with all its antlers complete and the perfect profile of a horse's head. Both drawings were full of energy.

19.—It was known that Sterne used his wife very ill, and in talking with Garrick one day in fine sentimental style of conjugal love and fidelity, he said, "The husband who behaves unkindly to his wife deserves to have his house burned down over his head."

"If you think so," said Garrick quietly, "I hope yours is well insured."

22.—Goethe's name has been variously mispronounced by the unlearned. Mr. R. L. Stevenson makes Bellairs, the disbarred lawyer in "The Wrecker," call him Go-eath. In Scotland Goatee, pronounced somewhat inquiringly, has been heard; but Goth, with emphasis and assurance, is more common. In country towns blue-stockings and the frequenters of aesthetic teas use the form Gitty.

23.—Palm Sunday is an ancient festival, of a joyful character, designed to commemorate the brilliant though short-lived popularity of the reception which Christ met with on entering Jerusalem, immediately before his Passion.

On this day, in Catholic countries, the priests bless branches of palm, or some other tree, which are then carried in procession, in memory of those strewed before Christ at his entrance into the holy city. The procession is as splendid a circumstance will admit of; and after it is done the boughs used are burnt, and their ashes preserved that they may be laid on the heads of the people next Ash Wednesday with the priest's blessing.

24.—Queen Elizabeth was a woman of remarkable capacity and a ruler of extraordinary vigour. The great men of her time trembled while acting as her servants, and the people were more ready to lavish admiration than love upon her.

She was little known in her own day as "Good Queen Bess"; it was during the reign of James, whom none could respect, and of Charles, whom many bitterly hated, that Elizabeth was most deeply regretted and that her memory was most fondly praised.

26.—His Royal Highness George William Frederick Charles, the second Duke of Cambridge, is the grandson of George III., and is first cousin to her late Majesty Queen Victoria. He entered the army in 1837, and succeeded to the dukedom on the death of his father, Adolphus Frederick, in 1850. He retired in 1895 from the high position of Commander-in-Chief of the British Army.

EARLY RISING.

"Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise!" That's what you say really; well, we're not so sure of this, but there is one thing we are quite divided about, namely: Go to bed late, and get up again early, makes a man stupid, seedy, and surly.

WHERE never was a philanthropist of more world-wide reputation than Mr. George Müller, the founder of the well-known orphanage at Bristol, who died in the spring of 1898 in the ninety-third year of his age.

The records of philanthropy furnish many examples of courage and indomitable perseverance, but in no career, perhaps, were these qualities ever more strikingly manifested. His reliance upon a Higher Power in the great crises of life was regarded on the part of many as simple fanaticism; but the results [he obtained were marvellous, and, though misunderstood in some quarters, he was able to kindle in those around him a devotion and an enthusiasm which were as extraordinary as they were unique.

He was born at Kroppenstadt, near Halberstadt, Prussia, on the 27th of September, 1805. At the age of eleven he was sent to the Cathedral Classical School at Halberstadt in order to be prepared for the University, as it was his father's desire that he should become a clergyman. But his character in these early days was ill fitted for a sacred calling, and his confessions recall those of Bunyan. On several occasions he was taken into custody for living at hotels without the means of paying for his board and lodging.

His father did all he could towards his reclamation, and sent him to the Gymnasium of Nordharsen, where he remained for two years and a half. In 1825 he became a member of the University of Halle, having been able to enter with satisfactory testimonials. He was thus enabled to preach in the Lutheran Establishment, but his life was still irregular and unreformed.

In 1826, soon after he had made a long walking tour in Switzerland with a former schoolfellow, there came a sudden change in his habits of life and the whole current of his thoughts. This was effected through the simple incident of his attendance at a devotional meeting in a private house. "All we have seen in Switzerland and all our former pleasures are as nothing compared with this evening," he said to his companion.

He now became filled with an enthusiasm for missionary work. Rationalism was taught at Halle, but Müller craved for more spiritual food, and in order to hear Dr. Tholuck and other divines he would frequently walk ten or fifteen miles.

His father strongly opposed his adopting a missionary career, and withdrew material support from him; but provision for his temporal wants was made in a remarkable way. In August, 1826, Müller began preaching, and for two months he occupied free lodgings provided for poor students of divinity. Once he wrote for a small temporary loan to a titled lady of Frankfort, but received no reply. Aid came, however, from a totally unexpected quarter; and the money, which was sent in silver by parcel, was accompanied by an anonymous letter couched in a very religious tone.

This incident is typical of many which occurred in his subsequent career. "He received and applied the spontaneous gifts of unsolicited donors for a period so protracted, and on a scale so stupendous, that the home at Bristol, carried on without the usual organisation and advertisement, is one of the marvels of a country and an age distinguished by the inscription, 'Supported by voluntary contributions.'"

In 1829 he came to England and settled as a minister, first at Teignmouth and afterwards at Bristol, and in 1830 he was married to Mary Groves, who thoroughly entered into his work. In prosecuting his ministry he gave up pew rents and relied upon voluntary gifts, for which a box was provided in his chapel. He was frequently reduced to a mere pittance of a few shillings; but his faith never wavered, and he was wont to declare that whenever he prayed his wants were always supplied.

Towards the close of 1835 he issued a proposal for the

The grave is a very small hillock, but we can see farther from it when standing on it, than from the highest mountain in all the world!

16.—Prince Charles was at his best in action—prompt, courageous, and resourceful. Mr. Lang thinks him at the truly heroic level when “on the heather” after Culloden. It was then, he says, that the Prince made his most ardent adherents. He was patient in this trial, cheerful, friendly, and for the most part uncomplaining.

With a leader of this sort, and a time favourable to uprising—no fervent patriotic feeling in the country—why did Prince Edward fall? Mr. Lang accounts for it almost entirely by the utter lack of trust among the leaders. To the Prince's own suspicions of Lord George Murray some of the most unhappy incidents in the campaign were due.

Some less philosophic readers may allow the reasoning its due, but account to themselves all the same for Prince Charles's downfall by the consistently unfortunate “luck of the Stuarts.”

19.—The famous poet Byron was lame. The cause of his lameness was “the contraction of the back sinew, which the doctors call ‘Tendo Achillis,’ that prevented his heels resting on the ground, and compelled him to walk on the fore part of his feet; except this defect his feet were perfect.”

Had surgical science been as far advanced at the time of Lord Byron's childhood as it was shortly after his death, when Stromeyer, of Hanover, introduced his admirable operation for the cure of club-foot by cutting the contracted tendon, Lord Byron would certainly have been cured of his defect, and his poetical genius would doubtless have been materially modified thereby.”

23.—The first folio edition of Shakespeare, published by his fellow actors Heminges and Condell, in 1623, was sold for twenty shillings. The price of a copy nowadays depends, of course, upon its condition. A perfect example is one of the greatest bibliographical rarities.

Incomplete copies fetch from between one and two hundred to five hundred pounds; but a fine copy, now in the possession of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, was sold for £714; and the late Mr. Quaritch, in one of his catalogues, described a first folio “genuine, sound, fine, and very large,” which he would not part with for less than £1,200.

These prices seem enormous; but it should be remembered that not only was this the first collection, with any pretensions to authority or completeness, of Shakespeare's plays, but that no less than twenty of them had never previously been published.

It is impossible to state precisely what the tiny, roughly finished quarto editions of the separate plays, many of which now bring high prices, cost their original purchasers but in the Epistle to the Reader, prefixed to the surreptitiously printed quarto of "Troilus and Cressida," 1609, the buyer is expected to think his "testerne well bestow'd." "Tester" in those days, as indeed it does now, meant sixpence, and this was probably the common selling price of separate plays.

24.—Statesman, legislator, administrator, orator, scientist, and philosopher, the late Duke of Argyll was a singularly bright ornament of the noble sphere in which he was born.

Like many other men of rank, he sometimes found his exalted position a lonely one, and his isolation was once neatly described by an innkeeper on his estate.

"His grace," remarked the Scotsman, "is in a verra deeficult pposition whatever. His pride of intellect will no' let him associate wi' men of his ain birth, and his pride of birth will no' let him associate wi' men of his ain intellect."

25.—Until comparatively recent times it was believed in some parts of England that if a person, on the eve of St. Mark's day, watched in the church porch from eleven at night till one in the morning, he would see the apparitions of all those who would be buried in the churchyard during the ensuing year. To quote the poet Montgomery:—

*"'Tis now," replied the village belle,
"St. Mark's mysterious eve,
And all that old traditions tell
I tremblingly believe;
How, when the midnight signal tolls
Along the churchyard green,
A mournful train of sentenced souls
In winding-sheets are seen.
The ghosts of all whom death shall 27.—General Grant was a man of remarkably few words. He used to pass hours in company without entering into conversation or even opening his lips.

During his visit to this country he dined at Apsley House, the guest of the second Duke of Wellington. A very distinguished company was present to meet him.

He spoke in monosyllables only during the dinner: but when the ladies had retired he remarked aloud to his host, "My lord, I have heard that your father was a military man!"

HERRICK.

establishment of an orphan home for destitute children bereaved of both parents. With characteristic energy and trust, he prayed for premises, for the sum of £1,000, and for suitable persons to take care of the children—and all were found. Orphans were to be received from the seventh to the twelfth year, and they were to stay in the home till they were able to go to service.

Some strange facts are recorded concerning many of the spontaneous gifts and donations made to the orphanage, and its first legacy, consisting of shillings, sixpences, and three-penny-pieces, and representing the savings of years, came from a child on its deathbed. The home was opened in May, 1836, and in the course of a year there were 64 children in two houses. The number went on increasing, and by the end of 1856 the inmates numbered 297.

Müller sometimes experienced seasons of difficulty and peril, as at the time of the Lancashire cotton famine, when it seemed for a moment as though his own benevolent undertakings must collapse and the orphan homes at Bristol be compelled to close. On November 10th, 1862, we find him noting that the outgoings for that day had been £632 12s. 10d., and the money received on the same day only £3 15s. 6d.

But the depression was only temporary. Gifts again flowed in, and the work progressed and extended year by year. In 1872 Mr. Müller issued a report which not only demonstrated the surprising growth of the institutions, but as a document stands almost alone for its record of a purely voluntary work. This report stated that the total number of children who had been received in the schools from their foundation was 27,488.

Mr. Müller added to his report, using again his customary phrase as to his passive methods, "Without anyone having been personally applied to for anything by me, the sum of £370,535 ls. has been given to me for the orphans, as the result of prayer to God, since the commencement of the work, which sum includes the amount received for the building fund for the five houses."

Mr. Müller was very scrupulous in issuing periodical balance-sheets, and these were duly audited by two independent gentlemen. Trustees held the Bristol property, and he never took a penny for his temporal needs from the amounts sent for the orphans. But sums were, from time to time, forwarded by friends for his own personal use.

In 1871, having lost his first wife some years before, Mr. Müller married Miss Susan Grace Sangar, who possessed little or no property, though she had once held a considerable amount. One thousand dollars was all that remained, and this she gave to the work upon her marriage.

Such results as Mr. Müller achieved, flowing from the benevolent efforts of one man, are, doubtless, unparalleled. Yet the founder of these institutions was not fond of parading his person before the world. On the contrary, he was shy and retiring in disposition, and shrank from publicity.

In addition to the work already described, Mr. Müller took every opportunity of addressing students in universities, theological seminaries, and colleges. He pursued his evangelistic labours, and with considerable success, in no fewer than 22 different countries.

Mr. Müller once stated that the total amount of money received "by prayer and faith" for the various objects of his institutions, from March 5th, 1834, to May 26th, 1895, was £1,373,348 6s. 2½d. By means of this sum 120,763 persons had been taught in the schools attached to the institutions of which he was the founder.

In person Mr. Müller gave the impression of possessing a calculating rather than an extravagant and enthusiastic disposition; and he was distinguished for a severe simplicity and artless pertinacity of purpose. As described by a friend, he could only be understood by those who shared his trust. But there was a magnetism even in his quietude which largely accounted for his influence.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

Discretion is the perfection of reason, and a guide in all the duties of life. It is found only in men of sound sense and good understanding.

1.—Addison married the Countess Dowager of Warwick and took up his abode in Holland House. The union was not a happy one between the cold and polished scholar and the gorgeous, dashing woman of rank, who probably never found out how sweet and pure a spirit burned beneath the ice of her husband's outward manner.

The quiet, lonely man loved to escape from the gilded saloons of Holland House into the City, where he wandered through the clubs or sat with some old friend over a bottle of wine.

And here it must be said—gladly would we avoid it if we could—that the great Joseph Addison was often in his lifetime the worse for wine.

5.—Napoleon was a middle-sized man, about 5 feet 7 inches high, very corpulent, but well proportioned up to the neck. He possessed a great flow of spirits, and when he thought proper had wonderful command over his temper, though by nature he was hasty and violent. His neck was as thick as a small horse's; his head very large, and covered with thin black hair. He shaved clean to his ears. His complexion was very yellow, and his eyes sharp and penetrating; in short, had he disguised himself in any dress, you could have told by his look that he was above other men.

6.—Lord Lytton (formerly Sir Edward Bulwer) had a curious drawing manner of speech, his words being interspersed with frequent "erras" to help him out when he was waiting for the proper word. Then, again, he would emphasise a sentence or a single word by loudly raising his voice, a peculiarity which gave his talk a certain dramatic character.

"I remember once," says a friend, "when I was dining with him en petit comité, the conversation turned upon the universality of belief in a Divine Creator, and even now I fancy I hear him saying: 'When ~~erra~~—I had the honour—~~erra~~—of becoming her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, I made it my first business—~~erra~~—to instruct my agents all over the habitable globe—~~erra~~—to report to me if they knew of any nation, tribe, or community—~~erra~~—' thus far he had spoken in a low melodious voice, when suddenly he changed his register and shot out the following words as from a catapult, 'who did not believe in a God.'

"He added that he had only found one savage community with such a want of belief."

8.—"If it rains on Ascension Day," says a calendar of the seventeenth century, "though never so little, it foretells a scarcity to ensue that year, and sickness particularly among cattle; but if it be fair and pleasant, then to the contrary, and pleasant weather mostly till Michaelmas."

TIME SLIPS AWAY.

SUIT yourself to the times.
TAKE time by the forelock.
THERE is a time for all things.
To save time is to lengthen life.
THERE is no appeal from time last.
WHAT greater crime than loss of time?

MAN cannot buy time.
EVERYTHING has its time.
TIME misspent is not lived, but lost.
TIME covers and discovers everything.
ALL the treasures of the earth will not bring back one lost moment.

HEROISM IN HOUSEKEEPING.

18.—What are the Ember Weeks? The Ember Weeks are those four seasons set apart for public ordinations, particularly for prayer and fasting, namely: the first week in Lent, the next after Whit Sunday, the 24th of September, and 13th of December. They were so called from the practice of sprinkling dust or embers on the head in token of humiliation.

21.—Mrs. Elizabeth Fry, born of the well-known Quaker family Gurney, brightened the early part of the century by her wonderful work for the benefit of women prisoners in our various gaols and convict settlements. Mrs. Fry followed out in her own sphere, and according to her own ideas, the great work which Howard had begun when directed by a mere accident, he set out on what Burke called his "circumnavigation of philanthropy."

22.—Pope, who had far more enthusiasm in his poetical disposition than is generally understood, was extremely susceptible of literary associations with localities. One of the volumes of his "Homer" was begun and finished in an old tower over the old chapel at Stanton Harcourt; and he perpetuated the event, if not consecrated the place, by scratching with a diamond on a pane of stained glass this inscription:—

*In the year 1718
Alexander Pope
Finished HERE
The fifth volume of Homer.*

24.—When with a reading party in Devonshire, Lord Selborne—then Mr. Roundell Palmer—tells us that he first had a glimpse of her late Majesty the Queen—then quite a young girl.

"There," he says, "on the pier at Lyme Regis, where she landed with her mother, the Duchess of Kent, I first saw the Princess Victoria, a pale, delicate-looking girl of fourteen years old. I could not anticipate the future, but I looked upon her with that intense interest which no loyal Englishman could help feeling towards one so young and of such bright promise, destined to so great an inheritance."

29.—Corpus Christi is a festival in the Roman Church, in honour of transubstantiation, kept on the Thursday after Trinity Sunday. It was instituted by Pope Urban IV. between 1262 and 1264, and confirmed by the Council of Vienne in 1311. The chief feature of the festival in Catholic countries is a procession, in which the pyx containing the consecrated bread is carried both within the church and through the streets.

MOTTOES FOR A CLOCK-CASE.

*Time and tide wait for no man.
We take no note of time, but from its loss.
Sleeping or waking, time passes with all.
Time trieth truth.
Time conquers all, and we must time obey.*

WHEN the famous philosopher Thomas Carlyle and his wife removed from Edinburgh, where they had spent the beginning of their married life, they settled at Craigenputtock, in Dumfriesshire, a lonely farmhouse which has been described by Mr. Froude as the dreariest spot in all the British dominions. It is isolated among miles of dreary moorland more than seven hundred feet above the level of the sea.

The place might have been a wise choice for a philosopher, but from his wife one is inclined to say the sacrifice should not have been exacted; Mrs. Carlyle resigned all amusements, consigned herself to almost total solitude, underwent more domestic drudgery than heretofore, and was not repaid, so far as we can judge, by any extraordinary enhancement of her husband's tenderness.

A touching account has been left by her of her struggles with the bread problem which had to be encountered in this outlandish place. Carlyle could not eat such bread as the Craigenputtock servants could bake for him or as could be bought at Dumfries, and Mrs. Carlyle had to learn to make it herself.

"So many talents are wasted," she says by way of preface, "so many enthusiasms turned to smoke, so many lives spoiled for want of a little patience and endurance, for want of understanding, that it is not the greatness or littleness of the duty nearest hand, but the spirit in which one does it, which makes one's doing noble or mean!"

"I had gone with my husband to live on a little estate of peat bog that had descended to me all the way down from John Welsh the Covenanter, who married a daughter of John Knox. It was sixteen miles distant on every side from all the conveniences of life, shops, and even post-office. Further, we were very poor, and further and worse, being an only child, and brought up to great prospects, I was sublimely ignorant of every branch of useful knowledge, though a capital Latin scholar and very fair mathematician. It behoved me in these astonishing circumstances to learn to cook! no capable servant choosing to live at such an out-of-the-way place, and my husband having bad digestion, which complicated my difficulties dreadfully.

"So I sent for Cobbett's 'Cottage Economy,' and fell to work at a loaf of bread. But, knowing nothing about the process of fermentation or the heat of ovens, it came to pass that my loaf got put into the oven at the time that myself ought to have been put into bed; and I remained the only person not fast asleep in a lonely house in the middle of a desert.

"One o'clock struck! and then two!! and then three!!! And still I was sitting there in the midst of an immense solitude, my whole body aching with weariness, my heart aching with a sense of forlornness and degradation. That I, who had been so petted at home, who had never been required to do anything but cultivate my mind, should have to pass all those hours of the night in watching a loaf of bread—which mightn't turn out bread after all!

"Such thoughts maddened me, till I laid down my head on the table and sobbed aloud. It was then that somehow the idea of Benvenuto Cellini sitting up all night watching his Perseus in the furnace came into my head, and suddenly I asked myself: 'After all, in the sight of the upper Powers, what is the mighty difference between a statue of Perseus and a loaf of bread, so that each be the thing that one's hand has found to do? The man's determined will, his energy, his patience, his resource, were the really admirable things, of which his statue of Perseus was the mere chance expression.'

"I cannot express what consolation this germ of an idea spread over my uncongenial life."

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

Every one of us, whatever our speculative opinions, knows better than he practises, and recognises a better law than he obeys.—FROUDE.

5.—When Pugin, a strange mediæval enthusiast, was in Italy he visited "Sant' Andrea della Fratte," the scene of the miraculous conversion of the Jew Ratisbonne, the Jew. Abbé Ratisbonne entered the church a Jew and came out a Christian, having seen there, he stated, a vision of our Lady. "The story," Pugin said, after seeing the church, "is demonstrably false. The man could not have said a prayer in such a hideous church. Our Lady could not have chosen such a church for a vision. The man could have had no piety in him to have stayed in such a church at all."

The friend to whom his remarks were addressed replied: "As I heard the story, Ratisbonne was not at the moment praying but thinking of the uncouthness of the architecture of the place."

Pugin's whole face changed. "Is that so?" Then he was a man of God. He knew what true Christianity was, though he was a Jew. I honour him. Our Lady would have come to him anywhere. The story is demonstrably true."

8.—Of humour the famous Mrs. Siddons had little, and her impersonations were rather deliberate conceptions than inspirations. But she had a genius for labour and a feeling for detail that rendered her work monumental in its dignity and force. She hated personal attentions, but praise of her art was the breath of her life. Sarah Siddons was fortunate in the fact that tragedy was in fashion when her star rose.

12.—Kingsley incurred great displeasure by the support he gave to what was called Christian Socialism. His novel "Alton Locke" contained some very outspoken sentiments as to the terrible sufferings of the poor and the duties of the rich.

Kingsley, Frederick Maurice, and their friends did not only plead, but they acted; they formed societies to assist poor tailors, and for a time the clothes they wore showed but too clearly that they had been cut in Whitechapel, not in Regent Street. Poor Kingsley suffered not only in his wardrobe, but in his purse also, owing to his having been too sanguine in his support of tailoring by co-operation.

15.—The signing of the Magna Charta was a great event for England. "The mean wickedness and tyranny of King John," says an able historian, "had raised nearly the whole body of his subjects in rebellion against him, and it at length appeared that he had scarcely any support but that which he derived from a band of foreign mercenaries."
"Appalled at the position in which he found himself, he agreed to meet the army of the

IN PROSPERITY.

PROSPERITY engenders sloth. In prosperity think of adversity. PROSPERITY lets go the bridle. THE nurse of anger is prosperity. PROSPERITY forgets father and mother.

ALL claim kindred with the prosperous. WHEN prosperity smiles beware of its smiles. PROSPERITY is the worst enemy men usually have. ADVERSITY is not so strong a trial of virtue as prosperity.

INCIDENTS OF AN ARTIST'S LIFE.

barons, under their elected general, Fitz-Walter, on Runnymede, by the Thames, near Windsor, in order to come to a pacification with them.

"They prepared a charter, assuring the rights and privileges of the various sections of the community, and this he felt himself compelled to sign, though not without a secret resolution to disregard it, if possible, afterwards.

"It was a stage, and a great one, in the establishment of English freedom. The barons secured that there should be no liability to irregular taxation, and it was conceded that the freemen, merchants, and villains (bond labourers) should be safe from all but legally imposed penalties. As far as practicable, guarantees were exacted from the king for the fulfilment of the conditions."

18.—William Cobbett was the incarnation of apparently irreconcilable views, frankly expressed with ferocious vigour; and, moreover, he is one of the most remarkable examples of self-made men. By sheer energy of temperament and intellect he overcame almost insuperable obstacles, and, making himself a great political power, exercised an extraordinary influence, directly or indirectly, on all classes of his countrymen.

His rugged conscientiousness covers a multitude of foibles, and excuses the savage language in which he denounced individuals whom he judged with single-minded injustice and prejudiced severity. The son of the Surrey farmer who had been reduced to take the King's shilling lived to repel the advances of Ministers who would gladly have muzzled him on any terms.

29.—The 29th of June is a festival of the Anglican Church in honour of St. Peter the Apostle. It is familiarly known that St. Peter, the son of Jonas, and brother of Andrew, obtained this name (signifying a rock) from the Saviour, in place of his original one of Simon, on becoming an apostle. He suffered martyrdom by the cross at Rome in the year 68, under the tyrannous rule of Nero.

The veneration felt, even in reformed England, for the alleged founder of the Church of Rome is shown in the festival still held in commemoration of his martyrdom and the great number of churches which are from time to time dedicated to him.

BUDDHISTIC WISDOM.

Happy is the man who hath sown in his breast the seeds of benevolence; the produce thereof shall be charity and love.

From the fountain of his heart shall rise rivers of goodness, and the streams shall overflow for the benefit of mankind.

He assisteth the poor in their trouble; he rejoiceth in furthering the prosperity of all men.

He censureth not his neighbour; he believeth not the tales of envy and malice, neither repeateth he their slanders.

AN artist of our time who has had a very interesting career—highly successful in his own work, and meeting with many remarkable people—is Mr. W. P. Frith, the Royal Academician, the painter of the famous pictures of "Ramsgate Sands" and "The Derby Day."

According to his own account, which we may take cum grano, the chapter of accidents had much to do with the circumstances which led to his choice of a profession. Artist or auctioneer, that came to be the question.

As a general rule, the strong bent of artistic instincts is thwarted by stern and incredulous parents, slow to believe in the gains of a vocation whose triumphs they are unfitted to appreciate. In this case it was the gifted boy who held out for the rostrum of the hammer; while his father, who was a thriving innkeeper at Harrogate, had set his heart upon his son becoming a Royal Academician.

"What impelled me," says Mr. Frith, "to the deed which determined my future life I cannot tell." The momentous deed was the copying of a dog, which, according to the artist, was a "lamentable failure." But he has no doubt as to the motive which prompted a second venture, as he received sixpence for the first attempt. He was sent to sundry schools, where he learnt next to nothing, for his fame as a Raphael in embryo accompanied him, and he had carte blanche to neglect his studies and waste the time with pencils or chalks.

His early efforts having convinced the boy's parents that he was destined to be a great artist, it was resolved to take him to London to make his fortune. On a foggy morning in March, 1835, young Frith, accompanied by his father and a folio of his "precious drawings," was set down by the mail coach at the Saracen's Head on Snow Hill. From Snow Hill the travellers were conveyed in a lumbering hackney coach to the house of Mr. Scaife, the lad's uncle, who kept an hotel in Brook Street, Grosvenor Square. Mr. Scaife had no high opinion of artists:

"'R.A., sir!' said my uncle. 'Why, they're as poor as rats, the lot of 'em. I know for a fact that —,' naming one of the most eminent animal painters that ever lived, 'never paid for a dead swan, or a deer, or something, that he got from that place in the New Road; and what is more, he lodged for six weeks with a cousin of my 'ead waiter, and ran away without paying a farthing. And that's the kind of thing you're going to bring your son up to!'"

It was finally arranged to send the boy to the school of art kept by Mr. Sass, then well known as an excellent teacher. In his house Mr. Frith occasionally met some of the great contemporary artists.

Aftersome time under Mr. Sass's tuition, and having passed through the Academy schools, Mr. Frith began practising in what he still thinks to be the right way for a beginning—viz., painting anyone whom he could persuade to sit, and to his great delight he got on one occasion £5 for a portrait. His first Academy picture, "Malvolio Cross-gartered before the Countess Olivia," was exhibited in 1840, and the news of its acceptance was conveyed in a pencil note from Williamson, the Academy porter—"Sir, you are hung safe."

But the artist's delight was rather diminished when he saw his bright picture looking on the Academy wall as if ink had been rubbed all over it. "To the uninitiated it would be impossible to conceive the change that appears to come over a picture when surrounded by others in a public exhibition, and subject to the glare of unaccustomed lights and the glitter of gold frames, with the ruinous reflections from all sides."

Mr. Frith soon began to make pleasant acquaintances, and he was especially delighted at receiving a visit from Charles Dickens, who came to request him to paint two little companion pictures of Dolly Varden and Kate Nickleby. A cheque for £40 was paid for the two works, which were sold,

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

*Love is the shadow of the morning, which decreases as the day advances.
Friendship is the shadow of the evening, which strengthens with the setting
sun of life.—LA FONTAINE.*

1.—July, God send thee calm and fair,
That happy harvest we may see,
With quiet time and healthsome air.
And man to God may thankful be.

2.—Sir Robert Peel was one of the greatest reformers the century has known. He was none the less a great and bold reformer because his intellect, his training, and his associations attached him to the Conservative party. He thoroughly felt and understood that in a moving society like ours there can be no real conservatism without reform, that there is no way of keeping things at a perpetual standstill.

History associates Peel mainly with financial reform, but it must be borne in mind that before he took up the task of expanding the system of financial reform introduced by Canning and Huskisson he had helped to carry great reforms of a very different kind by the abolition of penalties and disqualifications imposed on religious belief.

3.—A curious piece of weather lore, which finds expression in several proverbs, is that it always rains on the first Friday in July. This is one of those quaint beliefs that seem to survive any amount of contradiction by observed facts.

4.—Lady Tennyson, the wife of the famous Poet Laureate, was the daughter of Mr. Henry Selwood and niece of Admiral Sir John Franklin. She was born in Berkshire, July 9, 1813, and lived the early part of her life in Lincolnshire, and there, at Somersby, first met Alfred Tennyson.

Her married life dates from June 13, 1850, and thenceforward was one of complete self-effacement and utter devotion to her great husband's work. Those who knew her would testify what a large share of influence the late Lady Tennyson must have exercised on that work, for she was a woman who her best described by him who knew her best as a "tender spiritual nature," and, indeed, her strength of character, her wide sympathy, and keen powers of critical insight made companionship with her an abiding pleasure to all who were fortunate enough to know her.

In the dedication to her, by Francis T. Palgrave, of the "Lyrical Poems of Alfred, Lord Tennyson" occurs the following passage:—"You have allowed me, in this dedication, to grace it with a name honoured wherever Lord Tennyson's name is known as that of the one dear, near, and true to him from youth to age, the counsellor to whom he has never looked in vain for aid and comfort, the wife whose perfect love has blessed him through these many years with large and faithful sympathy."
She died on August 10th, 1894.

HOURS OF PLEASURE.

SWEET is pleasure after pain.
PLEASURE'S the hook of evil.
PLEASURES steal away the mind.
SHORT pleasures, long laments.
NEVER pleasure without repentance.
FLY the pleasure that will bite to-morrow.

A PLEASURE is well paid for that is long expected.
AFTER the greatest danger is the greatest pleasure.
SAY to pleasure, "Gentle Eve,
I will have none of your apple."
THE pleasures which we enjoy are very often lost by coveting more.

And every pent-house streams with hasty show'rs,
Twice twenty days shall clouds
their fleeces drain,
And wash the pavement with incessant rain.*—GAY.

25.—"Mr. Arthur Balfour's disposition," says Mr. H. W. Lucy, "endears him to both sides of the House. He, to use a colloquialism, never puts on 'side.' He is always simply himself, in small matters as in large."

30.—"There is a genuine ring of pathos about the description Prince Bismarck gives in his autobiography of his last interview with his dying master, William I. "The Emperor said," remarks the Prince, "that he expected me to remain in my position and stand at the side of his successors; at first there seemed to be in his mind chiefly the anxiety that I should not be able to get on with the Emperor Frederick."

"I expressed myself so as to calm his apprehensions, so far as it seemed fitting to speak to a dying man of the things which his successors and I would do after his death."

"Then, thinking of his son's illness, he required from me the promise that I would allow his grandson to have the benefit of my experience and remain at his side, if, as seemed probable, he should soon come to the government."

"I gave expression to my readiness to serve his successor with the same zeal as himself."

"His only answer was a slightly more noticeable pressure of my hand; then his mind began to wander, and the occupation with his grandson came so much into the front that he thought the Prince, who in September, 1886, had made a visit to the Tsar at Brest Litewsk, was sitting in my place at his bedside, and suddenly addressing me with 'Du,' he said, 'thou must always keep touch with the Russian Emperor; there no conflict is necessary.'"

"After a long interval of silence, the hallucination had disappeared; he dismissed me with the words, 'I still see you.'"

SAFE RULES.

Here are some safe rules —
*Pay your debts as soon as you get

Do without what you do not need.
Speak your mind when necessary.
Hold your tongue when prudent.
Speak to a friend in a seedy coat.
If you cannot lend a friend money, tell him why; if you do not wish to,
do the same.
Cut acquaintances who lack propi-after Dickens's death, for thirteen hundred guineas. The friendship soon ripened into intimacy, and one of the many portraits of the great novelist was painted by Mr. Frith.

Talking of self-criticism, in his autobiography Mr. Frith quotes an amusing example by Turner, whom he pronounces the greatest landscape painter who ever lived, although he may be said to have lost his head altogether in his latest mysterious productions. "At a dinner where I was present a salad was offered to Turner, who called the attention of his neighbour at the table (Jones Loyd, afterwards Lord Overstone) to it in the following words: 'Nice cool green, that lettuce, isn't it? And the beetroot pretty red—not quite strong enough; and the mixture, delicate tint of yellow that. Add some mustard, and then you have one of my pictures.'"

We are told by Mr. Frith that Turner's pictures had rarely sold until Ruskin opened the eyes of the public to his merits. A great gallery at the back of his house in Queen Anne Street was filled with unsold works, now the property of the nation. Mr. Munro of Novar paid the painter a visit, when he found Turner with a heavy cold, shivering over a morsel of fire, surrounded, as Turner remarked himself, "by my unsaleable things." Munro told Frith that, after a glance round the gallery, he offered Turner a cheque for £25,000 for the contents. "Turner's light blue eyes glittered." After some moments' thought, he begged his visitor to go for an hour's walk and come back for an answer. Then the answer was, "No, I won't—I can't. I believe I'm going to die, and I intend to be buried in these two" (pointing to the "Carthage" and "Sun Rising through Mist," which now hang near the Claudes in the National Gallery, being placed in this proximity by Turner's special request). "So I can't; besides, I can't be bothered. Good evening."

An amusing story is told by Mr. Frith of a portrait which he had painted of himself. It had passed out of his hands, but one day, forty-five years afterwards, it was discovered in a dingy shop in Great Portland Street.

"That," said the lady of the shop, 'is a portrait of the celebrated artist, Frith, painted by himself.' 'Frith,' said I; 'why, he must be quite an elderly man.' 'Well, sir, but he was young once; and that's what he was when he was young.' 'Hum, ha!' said I, pretending to examine the picture. 'Not much of a picture.' 'I beg your pardon; judges think it a very fine picture.' 'Well, what is the price?' 'Twenty pounds.' 'Surely that is a stiff price?' said I. 'Well,' said the woman, 'it cost us nearly as much; we shall make a very small profit. You see, it is very valuable, because the artist is diseased.' 'Deceased!' I exclaimed. 'Dead, do you mean?' 'Yes, sir. Died of drink.' 'Surely,' I exclaimed, 'you have made a mistake!' 'About the drink? Oh, no, sir; most artists is very dissipated. He was dreadful, Frith was. I daresay you have seen the print called "The Railway Station." Well, my husband used to see him when he was doing it, always more or less in liquor. My husband wondered how he could do his work; but it wore him out at last—the drink did.' 'Why,' said I, 'how can that be, when I tell you a friend of mine saw him the other day?' 'Not Frith your friend didn't. How could he when he's dead and buried, as I well know, for my husband attended his funeral!'"

The picture was purchased by Mr. Frith at the price demanded; but the artist informs us that he did not think it worth while to tell the woman that he was only drunk once in his life, and that he was still alive and well.

THE STEERSMAN'S PART.

But if the pilot slumbers at the helm
The very wind that wafts us towards the port
May dash us on the shelves—the steersman's part
Is vigilance, blow it rough or smooth.*

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

Bear in mind there is nothing like courage, even in ordinary things. Let us be willing to try at anything we wish to accomplish. It often happens that those who try at it do it.

1.—The date of the emancipation of the slaves in the British Colonies may be easily retained in the memory through the lines in Ann and Jane Taylor's pathetic little poem, "The Negro Boy" :—

"It was on the first of August, eighteen hundred and thirty-four That we told the poor black people we would serve them so no more."

6.—The reigning Duke of Argyll is popularly but erroneously called the MacCallum More. The proper designation is the MacCallan Mor, and the title is derived from Callan Mor, or Big Colin, one of the progenitors of the House of Argyll, who was the reigning chief at the close of the thirteenth century. He was killed in one of the tribal scuffles of the time in 1294, and is buried in Kilchrenan Church, Lochaweside.

15.—It is a matter of no slight importance that Sir Walter Scott was as noble in his personal character as he was eminent for his creative powers. "Whatever record leap to light he never shall be shamed."

Some of the most illustrious of Scott's contemporaries—men to whom he bowed with the unconscious modesty that is a mark of the highest genius—were devoured by vanity, by self-indulgence, or by indifference to the claims of others. Though Scott was not given to talk about duty, no man of his day had a higher practical standard of conduct, nor was anyone more perfectly unassuming, unselfish, and generous in act, word, and thought.

It is this fine and manly character shining through all his writings that gives Scott his almost unmatched position in literature. Without this moral element even his great imagination would have worked at a lower level.

18.—Few authors suffered more, worked harder, or produced so many masterpieces in so few years as that great French novelist, profound observer of life, and powerful creator of character Honoré de Balzac, who was born at Tours in 1799, and died at Paris on August 18, 1850.

After having written many masterpieces, this man of genius had not money often to pay for a dinner. So late in his career as 1848 (he died two years later at the early age of fifty-one) he was in such impetuous circumstances that he was obliged to boil some beef in a saucepan, and that was his fare for seven days.

But his troubles often resulted from his irregular habits. When he had money he spent it carelessly and often recklessly. Thus, having invited a Russian Prince to dinner, and perceiving that he had no

THE ART OF SAVING.

HE who saves finds.
No alchemy like saving.
FROM saving comes having.
SAVING is a greater art than gaining.
WHEN a man is rich he begins to save.
HE who would save should begin with the mounth.

SAVING comes too late when you come to the bottom.
HE who saves in little things can be liberal in great ones.
A MAN'S voluntary expenses should not exceed his income.
FOR age and want save while you may, no morning sun lasts a whole day.

plate, he bought a silver dinner service which cost him 4,000 francs.

On another occasion he wished to go to Vienna to meet Mme. de Hańska; and, having bought on credit a travelling carriage for 15,000 francs, was thrown into prison for debt on returning to Paris.

23.—The fate of the Duke of Buckingham, whose power in the latter part of his career had become almost unlimited throughout Britain, is well known; he was stabbed at Portsmouth while preparing to set out at the head of an expedition to raise the siege of Rochelle:

The assassin was an insane Lieutenant named Felton, who had served under him, and had been disappointed in the hope of being raised to the rank of captain. He dropped his hat while committing the murder, with a paper in it showing the direction of his insane malice.

27.—Titian's greatest misery was his wife, who was a domineering, dictatorial woman, who insisted that he should render an account to her of every item of his expenditure. The wretched man, who was very wealthy, was often put to the sorest straits to buy a glass of wine without letting his wife know anything about the transaction.

28.—The personal appearance of Count Tolstoy has been thus described by a Russian writer:—

"He was clad in a dark grey flannel blouse with a wide, turn-down collar, displaying his sinewy neck at the curves of the head. He was breathing rather fast from his walk in the cold air, and his grey hair lay in damp, tumbled locks upon his temples. He had an alert, wide-awake air, held himself upright, and moved with quick, short steps, hardly bending his knees, which suggested the motion of a man sliding upon ice.

"He appeared neither older nor younger than his age—he was then sixty-four—and produced the impression of a well-preserved, energetic peasant. And his face, also, was a true peasant's face: simple, rustic, with a broad nose, a weather-beaten skin, and thick, overhanging brows, from beneath which small, keen, grey eyes peered sharply forth."

YOU MAKE A MISTAKE—

If you think that the more you eat the stouter and stronger you become.

If you think that the more hours a child studies at school the faster he will learn.

In concluding that, exercise being healthful, the more violent or exhausting it is the more good it will do.

In imagining that every hour taken from sleep is an hour gained.

In thinking that the smallest room in the house is large enough to sleep in.

In advising another to take a remedy which you have tried on yourself, without special inquiry whether all the conditions are alike.

In eating without any appetite, or continuing to eat after it has been satisfied, merely to gratify the taste.

THE HISTORY OF THE POST-CARD.

THIS humble, though very useful factor in the social economy of this country, a writer in the Times reminds us, dates back over thirty years. It was on October 1st, 1870, that post-cards were introduced here. The idea, however, was not due to native ingenuity, for similar cards had been brought into use in Austria just one year previously. But the merit of inventing the idea is really due to Dr. Stephan, the late indefatigable German Postmaster-General, who in 1865 submitted to the delegates of a German postal congress a new kind of letter in the shape of an open post-card at a very low rate of postage. The plan, however, was not adopted. Whether or not this scheme was known to Dr. Emanuel Herrman, of Vienna, is not recorded, but it is the fact that that gentleman made a similar suggestion in 1869 to the Austrian Post Office. It appears that Dr. Herrman was forcibly struck by the fact that a large number of letters were sent which might as well have been forwarded without covers. So imbued was he with the idea that he forthwith suggested it, in an article to the Neue Freie Presse, to the Austrian Post Office authorities, who recognised the value and importance of the proposition so promptly that it was carried into effect on October 1st of the same year. The plan met with immediate popular favour.

The success of the system soon attracted attention, and in our own country the subject was brought to the notice of the postal authorities by means of an article published in the Scotsman of September 17th, 1869. There was also considerable agitation by private individuals; but the idea was at first rejected. On February 17th, 1870, however, Dr. Lyon Playfair (afterwards Lord Playfair) presented an extensively signed memorial in favour of what was termed a "card-post," with the result that inquiries were instituted in Austria. The investigation would appear to have been quite satisfactory, for a proposal to issue post-cards formed part of the Newspaper Postage Bill of 1870, and the system came into actual operation, as already stated.

It is curious to recall the hostility with which the post-card was met on its introduction. The main argument against it was that it would afford an opening for the ill-directed efforts of those who indulge in public libel and defamation of character for the purposes of venting their spite and malice. Fortunately, however, conviction of such a misdemeanour carries with it penalties of a sufficiently deterrent character to depress the number of cases of the kind to a very low average. Some people, too, urged that the use of a post-card was little short of an insult to the recipient, inasmuch as if the communication were not worth a penny it was not worth sending at all. This somewhat foolish idea became dispelled as the use of the post-card rapidly increased.

There was another class of persons who resented the introduction of post-cards. They were those who still regarded letter-writing as a fine art. This old school of letter-writers naturally looked upon the innovation as the death-blow to the carefully written epistles of the past. That the post-card may have had some such effect is not perhaps to be altogether disputed, but in an eminently utilitarian age like the present the fact that post-cards have become a most useful, and indeed indispensable, adjunct of social and commercial intercourse must far outweigh any disadvantages which the old-world letter-writer ascribes to its use.

Notwithstanding all the objections urged against the system of post-cards, their use in this country spread very rapidly. On the very first day of their introduction 575,000 cards passed through the office at St. Martin's-le-Grand alone, while the weekly number of cards posted throughout the country averaged 2,000,000. Each year since then it has rapidly increased. For the twelve months ending March 31, 1900, the number was estimated at 400,000,000.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

"Leisure," says the busy man, "is spare time in which one can do some other kind of work."

1.—September derived its name through being the seventh month from March, with which the Romans commenced their year. The word is compounded of "septem" (seven) and "inber" (a shower of rain). The Saxons called it "gerst monath," or barley month. Gerst was the name formerly applied to the cereal from which beer was made, the term barley being given to it from "beerleigli," the drink made therefrom. It was always the month in which they gathered in the barley harvest and commenced the important operation of brewing and getting ready for winter cheer. The Saxons also gave it the name of "halige monath," or the holy month, from an ancient festival held at this season of the year.

7.—A familiar nickname for Bishop Wilberforce (Oxford) was "Soapy Sam," and it has often been asked how he came by it.

The real origin of the sobriquet we believe to be this. The Bishop and his son-in-law (the Rev. Arthur Holt) together presented a window to the chapel of Gaudesdon Palace. On it were given the initials of the donors, which resulted in the unfortunate combination S. O. A. P.

14.—Here is a reminiscence of the great Duke of Wellington:—

At the church of Stratfieldsaye, where the Duke of Wellington was a regular attendant, a stranger was preaching, and the vergor when he ended came up the stairs, opened the pulpit door a little way, slammed it to, and then opened it wide for the preacher to go out. The latter asked in the vestry why he had shut the door again while opening it, and the vergor said, "We always do that, sir, to wake the Duke."

18.—At the age of twenty-six Dr. Johnson married a widow twenty years older than himself. Johnson and his bride travelled on horseback from Birmingham to Derby, at which place they were to be married.

The bride complained that Johnson rode too fast, and when she slackened his pace she passed him and scolded him for lagging behind. Johnson then pushed on till he was out of sight, and when the bride at length came up with him she was in tears. He was not "to be made the slave of caprice," and resolved to begin as he meant to end.

Johnson attributed this conduct of hers to the reading of old romances, where she had imbibed the idea that a woman of spirit should treat her lover like a dog.

A quarrel on the way to church is not a happy beginning of wedded life; but Johnson proved a good husband, and had great confidence in his wife's judgment. He read his "Rambler" to her, and she, wife like,

WISE MEN.

A WISE man, a strong man.
BETTER be wise than rich.
No one is wise at all times.
A WISE man is a great wonder.
IT is better to be lucky than wise.
HE is a wise man who speaks little.
THE wise is only once betrayed.
ALL countries are a wise man's home.

No man is born wise.
THE wise take the middle way.
TO the wise a word may suffice.
No one is wise enough to advise himself.
HE is wise that knows when he is well enough.
THE wise does not say all that he thinks, but thinks all that he says.

told him that she had not imagined he could write anything so good.

Some men would not have cared for this; but Johnson was much delighted, and said that praise from a wife comes home to a man's own bosom.

22.—The present Sultan of Turkey, Abd-ul-Hamid, is the second son of Sultan Abd-ul-Medjid. He became Sultan in 1876, in succession to his brother, Murad V., who was deposed, a measure of prudence in consequence of his mental incapacity. The heir-apparent to the throne is his brother, Mehemmed-Rehad Effendi.

25.—The great merit of "Hudibras" lies in the style and execution. The weak point of it consists in the story; indeed, a month after reading it you can hardly remember that it has any story at all.

No reader was ever heard to sit up all night in a fever of excitement to get to the last line. To read it continuously would need a literary appetite seldom met with; but, in spite of the poverty of the incidents and the incompleteness of the story, we turn to it again and again, filled with admiration at its wit and learning, and at the wonderful art work with which these are displayed.

27.—George Cruikshank, as is well known, became a violent teetotaler and never missed an opportunity of expounding his views on the subject.

One day he seized in the street a man who had been trying to pick his pocket, and, not content with giving him in charge, administered to him a lecture on the evils of intemperance.

"I feel sure," he said, "that you have been demoralised and ruined by the love of drink. I, on the other hand, have not touched a drop of intoxicating liquor for the last twenty years."

"What!" cried the horrified prisoner; "I've let myself be took by a teetotaler! Why, if I'd known you was a water drinker I'd have knocked your bloomers' head off."

29.—Queen Elizabeth is said to have been eating her Michaelmas goose when she received the joyful tidings of the defeat of the Spanish Armada. The custom appears to have originated in a practice among the rural tenantry of bringing a good stubble goose at Michaelmas to the landlord, when paying their rent, with a view to making him lenient. We may suppose that the selection of a goose for a present to the landlord at Michaelmas would be ruled by the bird being then at its perfection, in consequence of the benefit derived from stubble feeding.

IN CONVERSATION.

As a general rule it is wise to drop from conversation, and, as far as possible from memory, all that is unpleasant, or sad, or wrong, unless there be some positive and urgent reason for recalling it. Such things perish far more quickly by neglect than by exposure; while everything which is good and just and beautiful is quickened and strengthened by being brought to the light and emphasised.

"THAT LADY IS NOT MAD."

"IN Blankshire once," said the late George Grossmith, the father of the well-known actor, "I had the misfortune to incur the animosity of an eccentric lady. It was in one of those little country towns where they do not often have lectures, but where, oddly enough, whenever they have one they are pretty certain to have two the same night; for, being about equally divided by religious differences, such is the neighbourly, friendly spirit in which all matters are conducted there that whenever one side invites a lecturer down from London the other section are sure to have one down on the same night in opposition. Now, I was engaged to hold forth on the 'Sketches by Boz,' my rival in the opposition room behind on 'The Pilgrim's Progress.'

"The lady in question—elderly, very respectable, but not very intelligent—wandered from her peaceful home with the view of attending the latter; but she went to the wrong room, taking her place in the front, and, putting on the most solemn countenance it was ever my misfortune to behold, became a listener to my discourse on the writings of Dickens, and I am certain for the first twenty minutes did not discover the mistake she had made. But, alas! when I at length referred to my author's description of a country fair and the servant-girls out for the day, 'not allowed to have any followers at home, but now resolved to have 'em all at once,' the dear old soul gave a shriek of horror, and said quite audibly, 'Oh, how shocking!'

"This exclamation was repeated when I described 'the fat old lady with the Jack-in-the-box, and three shies for a penny,' and I at last became somewhat unnerved. I tried not to look at the old lady; but there is nothing in creation more difficult than the effort not to look at a thing you don't want to.

"At length I approached with horror the author's description of a thimble-rig, knowing it would upset her. 'Here's a little game to make you wake up and laugh six months after you're dead, buried, and forgotten, and turn the hair of your head grey with delight. Here's three little thimbles and one little pea. Keep your eye on the pea, and never say die! Now there, with a one, two, three, and a three, two, one,' etc.

"The lady was quite enough. The old lady, mistaking me for the creature I was describing, and believing I was offering to bet with the company, uttered a shriek of horror, and left the room.

"'Poor lady,' said I to the quiet old chairman, 'of course she's mad! But why did the committee let her in?'

"'No, sir,' said the president, 'that lady is not mad; she's my wife.'

"I apologised; but, much to my comfort, the chairman was not so much offended as I had supposed; for, addressing me again, he said, 'Never mind; you'd better get on with your lecture. She's more trouble to me than she is to you.'

THE RAINY DAY.

*The day is cold, and dark, and dreary
It rains, and the wind is never weary;
The vine still clings to the mouldering wall,
But at every gust the dead leaves fall;
And the day is dark and dreary.*

*My life is cold, and dark, and dreary;
It rains, and the wind is never weary;
My thoughts still cling to the mouldering past,
But the hopes of youth fall thick in the blast;
And the days are dark and dreary.*

*Be still, sad heart, and cease repining;
Behind the clouds the sun's still shining,
Thy fate is the common fate of all;
Into each life some rain must fall;
Some days must be dark and dreary.*

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

If it were not for the weather a good many men would never turn their eyes heavenward at all.

1.—The late Professor Jowett is the hero of an amusing story of taciturnity and simplicity. The Professor during his connection with Balliol College had occasion to visit some of the farms belonging to the college in the north. One of the leading tenants was deputed to take him round.

A long tramp they had, in the course of which Dr. Jowett uttered not a word, while the farmer was too much stricken with awe to venture a remark.

But when the walk was almost done the Professor was roused to speech. Looking over a stone wall to a goodly field of vivid green, he abruptly said, "Fine potatoes."

Quoth the farmer—"Yon's turn-muts."

Not a word more was spoken between them.

21.—A French sergeant, present at the Battle of Trafalgar, has given the following account, from an enemy's point of view, of the death of Lord Nelson:—

"On the poop of the English vessel was an officer covered with orders, and with only one arm. From what I had heard of Nelson, I had no doubt that it was he. He was surrounded by several officers, to whom he seemed to be giving orders.

"At the moment I first perceived him several of his sailors lay wounded beside him, by the fire of the Redoubtable. As I had received no orders to go down, and saw myself forgotten in the tops, I thought it my duty to fire on the poop of the English vessel, which I saw quite exposed and close to me. I could even have taken aim at the men I saw, but I fired at hazard among the groups I saw of sailors and officers.

"All at once I saw great confusion on board the Victory, the men crowded round the officer whom I had taken for Nelson. He had just fallen, and was taken below covered with a cloak. The agitation shown at this moment left me no doubt that I had judged rightly, and that it really was the English admiral. An instant afterwards the Victory ceased from firing; the deck was abandoned by all those who occupied it, and I presumed that the consternation produced by the admiral's fall was the cause of this sudden change."

26.—Doddridge attributed the production of his "Commentary" and most of his other writings to the "difference between rising at five and at seven o'clock in the morning for the space of forty years." He further added, "Supposing a man to go to bed at the same hour at night, this is nearly equivalent to the addition of ten years to a man's life."

29.—Without extravagance or recklessness, Leech had a genius for impecuniosity.

TOO LATE.

"Too late" is the curse of life, A LITTLE too late, much too late.

It is no time to stoop when the head is off.

AFTER the war many heroes present themselves. It is no use to stop the hole after the mischief is done.

It is too late to grieve when the chance is past.

WHEN the calf is drowned they cover the well.

HE that always thinks it is too soon is sure to come too late.

THERE is no need to bring medicines after the patient is dead.

A PRIMA DONNA AT SEVEN YEARS OLD.

His biographer, Mr. Frith, confesses that he cannot throw much light on the subject. "In addition," says Mr. Frith, "to the wonderful political cartoons, Leech contributed more than 3,000 illustrations of life and manners to the paper; and it is said—I know not how truly—that he received from first to last more than £40,000 for his contributions to Punch alone. If he did, what did he do with the money? That he was in no way extravagant I know, and that he was frequently in dire straits after his connection with Punch I also know. . . . Did he lend or give away his hardly earned money? Did he accept bills for so-called friends, and find that he had to meet them?"

"Leech was one of the most open-hearted and generous of men, an easy victim to a plausible tale of real or fictitious distress. I suppose we shall never know why a man who made so large an income, who had not a large family to absorb much of it, and who never lived expensively, should have died comparatively poor."

30.—Sheridan wrote his last play, The Critic, when he was twenty-eight, and when he died in his sixty-fifth year he had been for thirty-one years an active and laborious member of Parliament. As a dramatist he was a sudden apparition, cramming all his work into the few years between 1775 and 1779.

His name is ever kept before the play-going public by The School for Scandal and The Rivals. These are triumphs of composition, of wit, cleverness, and genuine knowledge of stage effect. Nobody goes to them for enlightenment or for a deep knowledge of human nature, although they are not very strikingly unnatural. "Wit and pleasantry," says Sir Walter Scott, speaking of Sheridan, "seem to be the natural atmosphere of this extraordinary man, whose history was at once so brilliant and so melancholy."

31.—Formerly, at Ripon, in Yorkshire, it was customary for the women to make a cake for every one in the family, whence Halloween was called by them Cake Night.

This was, no doubt the same custom as is practised nowadays in some places on All Saints' Day, called "souling." Both children and grown-up people go from house to house a-souling—that is, begging for soul cakes. In some districts they perform a kind of play, but in all instances some sort of doggerel is sung. In Shropshire the inhabitants used to set on a board a high heap of these soul-cakes, of which they offered one to every person who came to the house.

THE most renowned singer of the last half-century, Adelina Patti—the Baroness Cederström—has recently given an account of how she first appeared, when only a child, on the operatic stage, and so started on a career the triumphs of which have been innumerable. This is what she says:—

It was the night of November 16, 1857.

In New York, where my parents then resided, was a great wide thoroughfare, paved with cobble-stones, and on the east side of this thoroughfare was a theatre known as Niblo's Garden.

The piece was Una Voce, in which my father and mother were playing.

I was then a tiny girl of seven years, with a pale face and very, very black eyes, and, next to singing, my favourite pastime was running down Broadway trundling a hoop.

One of the first memories I have, next to that connected with my hoop, is my standing behind the scenes and peering through a hole in the curtain while my father and mother went through their performance.

The singers as they came off the stage used to stoop down and give me toys and kisses, or fill my pockets with boubons.

It was a large theatre, and it seemed almost a little world of itself to me. The flies seemed dreadfully high, and the proscenium lights very, very bright; but of all the artists I thought none seemed to equal my mother.

Once, but not long after my début, a great soprano, who had been starring for a few nights, had just finished a long aria, rounding off with a beautiful trill.

She had made her exit as the house rang with applause, when she stooped down and looked at poor little me.

"Oh, dear," I said, "how badly you trilled. 'Twasn't close enough. Just listen to me. I'll show you the way."

I had never been taught to "shake," yet it came to me quite naturally, and a great many people besides my parents praised it.

I still wonder what the famous soprano thought of me. An odd little creature, I'm sure.

But before I tell you what happened on that first night, I must tell you why I became a prima donna at such an early age—because I had been a prima donna of the nursery months and months before. When I had been put to bed on my return home with my father and mother from the opera, and I was quite certain that they and the rest of the household had gone to sleep, I used to hop out again and imagine myself even as great a personage as the famous soprano I have just mentioned.

Oftentimes now I can see myself in a room of that modest brick tenement, dancing and singing, and dressed up in all the odd costumes I could put my hands on.

Death scenes were my weakness, and I do not mind admitting that Norma was my favourite.

When I had done something which I considered very fine indeed, I cried out, "Brava, Adelina!" and threw magnificent bouquets and wreaths down before my own bare little feet.

And then I would grow sleepy, palled with success, and so creep back to bed, leaving the bouquets and the wreaths in the middle of the floor.

Shall I tell you that these magnificent tokens were made of old newspapers?

Yes. I'm sure I was a very strange little girl.

We were all very oppressed and anxious in those days, and the prospects of making money were very bad. I was seven years old when the opera company, of which my father and mother were members, began to return so little money that I could no longer stand my father's troubled face.

I remember saying: "Don't sell your beautiful turquoise pin, papa. Let me help you; I can sing well enough, and I will be a little prima donna."

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

As leaves fall from a tree in cold weather, so in adversity do false friends drop off.

3.—The nation ruled over by the Mikado is certainly the most progressive in the East, and the appearance of Japan as a Great Power, it has been well observed, promises not only to introduce a new element in the East, but to change the whole aspect of foreign affairs.

Some interesting notes on Japan may be quoted from Mrs. Bishop, the well-known traveller. "Its population," she says, "of 44,000,000 is vehemently patriotic, civilised, independent, educated, ambitious, and free, persevering, tenacious, possessing a singular secretiveness and powers of assimilation. Law is respected, the social order remarkable, and a genius for constitutional government pervades all classes. The standard, and practice of social and commercial morality are low."

5.—The 5th of November is the anniversary of two prominent events in the history of our country—the discovery and prevention of the Gunpowder Treason and the inauguration of the Revolution of 1688 by the landing of William III. in Torbay. About the middle of last century additional interest was attached to the date from the victory at Inkerman over the Russians in the Crimea being gained on this day in 1854.

9.—Milton's great English epic, the "Paradise Lost," appeared in 1667, in small quarto, plainly and neatly bound, as advertised, at the modest price of three shillings.

The poet's remuneration was in proportion. He received an immediate payment of £5, and stipulated with the printer for further sums of £5 each to be paid when thirteen hundred of the first edition should have been sold, and again after the sale of the same number of the second and third editions respectively. Each edition was to be limited to fifteen hundred copies.

13.—There is a good deal of human nature in the following anecdote told of the famous musical composers Rossini and Meyerbeer.

Rossini was going along the Boulevards with a friend, when they met Meyerbeer, and exchanged cordial greetings.

"And how is your health, my dear maestro?" asks Meyerbeer.

"Shaky, cher matre, very shaky. My digestion, you know, my poor head. Alas! I'm afraid I am going down hill."

They pass on. "How could you tell such stories?" asks the friend; "you were never in better health, and you talk of going down hill."

"Ah, well," answered Rossini, "to be sure—but why shouldn't I put it that way? It gives him so much pleasure."

18.—The Maréchal Grammont having for some time besieged a fortress, the garrison of which held out obstinately, a capitulation at length took place, upon the signing of which the governor of the fortress said, "Maréchal, I will be candid with you: if I had not been bereft of a bullet to defend myself, I should not have surrendered."

"That I may not appear wanting in candour," replied the Maréchal, "I must tell you that had I had any more powder I would not have acceded to the terms of capitulation."

20.—The first French-Canadian Premier of the Dominion, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was born in 1841, and was educated for the Bar. After attaining considerable eminence in his profession, he embarked in 1871 on a political career, when he was chosen as a Liberal member to the Quebec Provincial Assembly. Here his eloquence and ability at once brought him to the front. Two years later he was elected to the Federal Assembly. In 1891 he was chosen as leader of the Liberal party, and after the general election of 1896 he led his followers to a notable victory.

It will be remembered that he was one of the familiar figures in London on the occasion of the Jubilee festivities in honour of our late Queen.

22.—About the end of the seventeenth century the practice was introduced of having concerts on St. Cecilia's Day, the 22nd of November. These were highly fashionable for a time; the words of the pieces performed being frequently from the pen of writers like Dryden, Addison, and Pope, and the music composed by artists like Purcell and Blow.

24.—Great difference of opinion prevails as to the statesmanship of Lord Melbourne, but he held office during that most trying period when the Reform Bill was in agitation, and it required no mean talents, however well supported by party, to compete with such a statesman as Sir Robert Peel in subsequent years. He was an accomplished gentleman, an agreeable companion, and a finished speaker.

28.—The siege of Kars lasted 174 days, from June to November, 1855. General Penwick Williams, "the Hero of Kars," had only 15,000 men under his command, with provisions for three months, and three days' munitions of war; while Mouravieff, the Russian general, had an army of 40,000 infantry and 10,000 cavalry. The brave garrison was at last overcome by famine and cholera.

30.—St. Andrew is said to have been martyred by crucifixion, 30th November, 69, at Patræ, in Achaia. His festival was instituted about 559. The Royal Society's anniversary is kept on St. Andrew's Day.

BE AS KIND AS YOU CAN.

Perform a kind action, and you will find a kind feeling growing within you, even if it was not there before. As you increase the number of your kind and charitable interests you find that the more you do for others the more you love them.

Serve them, not because they are your friends, not because they are interesting, not because they are grateful—serve them for the simple reason that they are your brethren; and then you will very soon find that the fervent heart keeps time with the charitable hands.

And I remember, too, my father's eyes filling with tears as he replied:

"No, little one, what you say is impossible."

But I had made up my mind, nevertheless. My mother had already given me lessons in music, and I had practised a little with her.

I gave them all no peace, until one day it was noised abroad that little Adeline, the daughter of Signor Patti, was to sing Una Voce and La Sonnambula at Niblo's Garden.

"A prima donna of seven summers!" said everybody, and I am sure they must have laughed.

But it was no laughing matter to me or to my mother and father, although I was not a bit nervous or frightened, but, on the contrary, full of childish confidence.

I didn't care for much to eat that evening, but nobody paid any attention to my want of appetite.

I coaxed my mother, and she braided my hair and powdered my tiny brown face.

We burned candles in those days, and I can still see myself looking for many minutes into the mirror of my bedroom, with the heavy shadows behind me, before we set out for the theatre.

From time to time my father brought reports to us in our dressing-room of the appearance of the house. It was not a large audience.

At seven o'clock the curtain went up, and I came on. I think everybody in the house must have applauded, for, besides having a great many friends there, it would have been hard of anybody not to have been interested in so young a cantatrice.

They told me afterwards that from those first notes nobody had any doubt that I was a success and a born prima donna. Child as I was, I felt sure that le Bon Dieu was at my side.

When the curtain went down on Una Voce, I saw a great number of men and women clapping and waving their hands, and crying "Brava! brava!" and even the gods in the gallery tried to whistle as loud as they could, and you must not forget that the gods were my personal friends. There are no street arabs like those of New York. They had long before nicknamed me "The Little Chinese Girl," because of my black eyes and yellowish features.

Then I remember my father catching me up in his arms and kissing me, and my mother and all the members of the company petting me as if I had done something wonderful indeed; but it was not more than I expected to do.

But there was Sonnambula to come before the evening was finished, and they told me that there were more people to hear Sonnambula than Una Voce, because many of the audience had gone out and brought in chance acquaintances.

They told me that one man actually brought over no fewer than six friends from the New York Hotel over the way; and, what was more and better for us, he paid for them.

But I have told you enough; the world knows pretty well what has happened after that. But I have here told you the story of my first appearance.

IN OLD AGE.

*The seas are quiet when the winds are o'er;
So calm are we when passions are no more;
Yet then we know how vain it was to boast
Of fleeting things, so certain to be lost.*

*Clouds of affections from our younger eyes
Conceal that emptiness which age describes.
The soul's dark cottage, battered and decayed,
Lets in new light through chinks that time has made.*

*Stronger by weakness, wiser men become
As they draw nearer to their eternal home;
Leaving the old, both worlds at once they view
That stand upon the threshold of the new.*

Poor and Content is rich and rich enough;
But riches endless is as poor as winter
To him that ever fears he shall be poor.

4.—Froude tells how one day, when he was walking to town with the great historian, they hailed a bus, Carlyle entering the vehicle, Froude mounting to the top.

The conductor remarked to the latter, "Fine old gentleman he as got into the bus! We think a deal of him down Chelsea way."

"Yes," said Froude, "and the Queen thinks a good deal of him, too, for she has offered to make him a Grand Cross."

"Very proper of she to think of it," said the conductor; "and more proper of he to have nothing to do with it! It isn't that as can do honour to the likes of he!"

During another journey a passenger commented on the peculiarity of Carlyle's hat. "Old fellow got a queer 'at on," observed this passenger to the driver. "Queer 'at!" answered the driver "He may 'ave a queer 'at, but what would you give for the eadpiece inside of it?"

5.—In the commercial business of disposing of his famous novels Alexandre Dumas the elder occasionally descended to sharp practice. He bargained with his editors for so much a line, though the price was paid in francs and not in sous. Hence the "A's" the "O's," and the "C'est bien's" which are continually interpolated, with a line to each.

The taciturn Grimaud was a lucrative invention, for Grimaud in his rôle only speaks in monosyllables. Grimaud ran unnoticed through "Les Trois Mousquetaires;" but in the sequel the long-suffering editor lost patience.

He might as well have waited, for "Vingt Ans Après" was nearly at an end. However, he sent the author a note of remonstrance, saying that Grimaud must either be silenced or speak to more purpose.

Dumas was disgusted, but killed him on the spot.

7.—Here is a remarkable aphorism of General Buller, quoted to us by one of his friends:—

"If there are two courses of action open to you, always choose the disagreeable. It is sure to be the right one."

11.—In tears we have a universal language. "I will mention," says Berlioz, "a pretty speech made by Lipinsky, concert-master at the theatre in Dresden. I was in that capital of Saxony three years ago, after a splendid concert, at which my legend of 'The Damnation of Faust' had been given.

"Lipinsky introduced me to a musician, who he said wished to compliment me, but he did not speak a word of French.

"So, as I did not speak German, Lipinsky offered to act as interpreter, when the artist stepped forward, took me by the hand, stammered out a few words, and burst

TELLING TALES.

PUT no faith in tale-bearers.

A GOOD tale ill told is a bad one.

A TALE never loses in the telling.

ONE tale is good until another is told.

TELL no tales out of school.

HALF a tale is enough for a wise man.

THERE is many a true tale told in jest.

AN honest tale speeds best being plainly told.

HAUNTED HOUSES.

into sobs that he could no longer restrain.

"Then Lipinsky, turning to me and pointing to his friend's tears, said, 'You understand!'"

14.—Mrs. Hudson, the wife of the famous railway king, was shown a bust of Marcus Aurelius at Lord Westminster's, on which she said, "I suppose this is not the present Marquis."

To relish this one must remember that the vulgar in those days used to pronounce "marquis" very like "Marcus."

25.—The custom of singing carols at Christmas time has come down from the Romans, who at this season used to sing vigil hymns near the dwellings of their friends. For generations, when books were rare, carol singers were regarded as important persons. To the unlettered their "ballads in print" were things of wonder, and caused them to flock round the carol seller with wondering delight, even when they sung doleful tunes. The most famous of carols is that which begins with the lines:—

*"God rest you, merrie gentlemen,
May nothing you dismay."*

30.—When Sir James Paget, the eminent surgeon, died on the 30th of December, 1899, he was near the completion of his eighty-sixth year. He was naturally of strong constitution, had great power of enduring fatigue or want of sleep, and was curiously indifferent to personal comfort. He often took hasty meals in his carriage, not allowing himself time to eat in any more regular way.

He retained in advanced life, to an extraordinary degree, not only his faculties, but the use of his senses. When over eighty he read and wrote letters without glasses, and his writing, always small and neat, became even smaller and neater as he advanced in years.

IF YOU WANT TO BE LOVED—

- Don't find fault.*
- Don't take offence at trifles.*
- Don't believe all the evil you hear.*
- Don't jeer at everybody's religious beliefs.*
- Don't expect too much deference from anybody.*
- Don't be rude to your inferiors in social position.*
- Don't repeat gossip, even if it does interest a crowd.*
- Don't underrate anything because you don't possess it.*
- Don't go untidy on the plea that everybody knows you.*
- Don't contradict people, even if you are sure you are right.*
- Don't conclude that you have never had any opportunities in life.*
- Don't believe that everyone else in the world is happier than you.*
- Don't be inquisitive about the affairs of even your most intimate friends.*
- Don't get into the habit of vulgarising life by making light of the sentiment of it.*
- Don't lay down the law as if no one in the world had a chance to be right but yourself.*

A ROOM in the principal inn of a country town had the reputation of being haunted. Nobody would sleep in it, and it was therefore shut up; but it so happened that at an election the inn was choked full, and there was only the haunted room unoccupied. A gentleman's gamekeeper came to the inn exceedingly fatigued by a long journey, and wanted a bed. He was told that unless he chose to occupy the haunted room he must seek a bed elsewhere. "Haunted!" he exclaimed; "stuff and nonsense! I'll sleep in it; ghost or demon, I'll have a look at what haunts it."

Accordingly, after fortifying himself with a pipe and tankard, he took up his quarters in the haunted chamber and retired to rest.

He had not lain down many minutes when the bed shook under him most fearfully. He sprang out of bed, struck a light (for he had taken the precaution to place a box of lucifer matches by his bedside), and made a careful examination of the room; but could discover nothing. The courageous fellow would not return to bed, but remained watching for some time. Presently he saw the bed shake violently. The floor was firm; nothing moved but the bed.

Determined to find out, if possible, the cause of this bed-quake, he looked in the bed, under the bed, and near the bed; but not seeing anything to account for the shaking which every now and then seemed to seize on the bed, he at last pulled it from the wall.

"Then the murder came out." The signboard of the inn was fastened to the outer wall by a nut and screw, which came through to the back of the bed, and when the wind swung the signboard to and fro the movement was communicated to the bed, causing it to shake in a most violent manner. The gamekeeper, delighted at having hunted by the ghost, informed the landlord the next morning of the real nature of his unearthly visitor, and was handsomely rewarded for rendering a room hitherto useless now quite serviceable.

Some years ago the inhabitants of a house in the county of Mid-Lothian were greatly disturbed by hearing gurgling and even faint rapping sounds at intervals behind the plaster of one of the rooms. The most of the inmates were disposed to consider the same to be of a supernatural character, and to be similar to knocks at doors and windows, intended to give warning of approaching misfortune and distress. But one person, more shrewd and discerning than the others, suggested that part of the lime should be removed, and the water-pipe examined. This was done, and the cause was at once discovered. A partial stoppage of the pipe was found to have produced the peculiar sound.

The cause of ghostly sounds, as we see from these authentic incidents, is often very simple. Here is another example. On the pretty Norman coast at St. Aubin a friend of ours lived some years ago in a house where strange sounds were heard at night; they were especially located in the staircase. The cause was found by a man of a scientific turn of mind after a careful study of the circumstances. A spring was flowing underground right under the staircase. The house being a small distance from the seashore the spring was affected in its flow by the state of the tide, and thus was explained the apparent irregularity in the ghostly sounds, which were nothing else than the murmurs of the spring. The staircase acted as the sounding board of a piano, increasing the volume of the noise.

No doubt many so-called ghost sounds have no other origin than an unknown spring or underground water-flow. It is not a romantic explanation, but it saves having our hair stand on end.

WISDOM IS THE SUNLIGHT OF THE SOUL.

FACE a situation, and you are three-quarters man of it.

WHEN a woman buries a sorrow she should give it only one funeral.

EDUCATION is but another term for preparation for eternity.

AN old fox doesn't go twice into the trap. POVERTY kills romance; but so, often, does wealth.

CHARACTER plays a larger part than intellect in the happiness of life.

MONEY is not essential to happiness, but happy people usually have enough. So save some.

HE is rich whose income is more than his expenses; and he is poor whose expenses exceed his income.

By dint of frequently asserting that a man is a fool we make him so.

FOR embittering life, for destroying the most sacred relationships, for devastating homes—in short, for their gratuitous, misery-producing power—evil tempers stand alone.

ADVICE.

*Have more than thou showest;
Speak less than thou knowest;
Spend less than thou owest.*

CONTINUAL sailing on a smooth sea never yet made a skilful mariner; it is a storm that awakens power.

THE angriest person in a controversy is the one most liable to be in the wrong.

THERE is only one thing worse than quarrels in public. That is caresses.

IT's climbing hills before they come to them that makes some people tired.

YOU may have hot enemies without having a warm friend; but not a fervid friend without a bitter enemy. The qualities of your friends will certainly be found to be those of your enemies: cold friends, cold enemies; half friends half enemies; fervid enemies, warm friends.

COURAGE.

*Never say die!
Up, man, and try!*

HEALTH.

*The best physic is fresh air;
The best pill is plain fare.*

If you want to make some men hot, just tell them to keep cool.

WHOEVER is satisfied with what he does has reached his culminating point.

MODESTY is to merit as shade is to figures in a picture; giving it strength and beauty.

PRIDE.

*Of all the causes which conspire to blind Man's erring judgment, and misguide the mind,
What the weak head with strongest bias rules,
Is pride, the never-failing vice of fools.*

CONTENT.

*This is the charm, by sages often told,
Converting all it touches into gold;
Content can soothe, where'er by fortune placed—
Can rear a garden in the desert waste.*

ROBBERY.

*He that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed.*

WORKING.

*Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is earnest, brave, and true,
Moment by moment, the whole day through.*

LOVE is the highest multiple of the heart.

To the poor owe nothing, and from the rich ask nothing.

GRIEF can take care of itself; but to get the full value of a joy you must have somebody to divide it with.

INDEPENDENCE.

*Be your own most useful friend;
Cease on others to depend.*

PROMISES.

*A false promise thou must shun,
'Tis a lie and theft in one.*

ONE'S own health is gold's worth.

WHERE friends meet hearts warm.

IT is more from carelessness about truth than from intentional lying that there is so much falsehood in the world.

NO man is a better husband than he is a lover. THE man who has lived for himself has the privilege of being his only mourner.

NOTHING is more precious than time, and those who mis-spent it are the greatest of all prodigals.

THE effect of liberty to individuals is that they may do what they please; we ought to see what it will please them to do before we risk congratulations which may be soon turned into complaints.

LEARN as if you were to live for ever. Live as if you were to die to-morrow.

IT's better to love the person you can't marry than to marry the person you can't love.

THE good and silly people do more harm than the bad and clever ones.

THE prodigal robs his heir, the miser robs himself. The middle way is justice to ourselves and others.

THE ancestor of every action is a thought. Our dreams are the sequel of our waking knowledge.

LITTLE that is truly noble can be expected from one who is ever poring on his cash-book or balancing his accounts.

CONDUCT.

*It needeth courage to be true,
And steadfastly the right to do,
Loving him that wrongeth you.*

NOTHING is certain but death and taxes.

IF the prudence of reserve and decorum dictates silence in some circumstances, in others prudence of a higher order may justify us in speaking our thoughts.

VISION is the art of seeing things invisible.

PHYSIC, for the most part, is nothing else than the substitute of exercise or temperance.

"A FOOL and his words are soon parted"; for so should the proverb run.

WHEN you do not know what to do it is a clear indication that you are to do nothing.

TIME, with all its celerity, moves slowly on to him whose whole employment is to watch its flight.

REAL friendship is a slow grower, and never thrives unless engrafted upon a stock of known and reciprocal merit.

FAULTS.

*In other men we faults can spy,
And blame the mote that dims their eye,
Each little speck and blemish find—
To our own stronger errors blind.*

"THE precept "Know yourself" was not solely intended to obviate the pride of mankind, but likewise that we might understand our own worth.

A MAN should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying in other words that he is wiser to-day than he was yesterday.

IMPROVEMENT.

*We all can do better than yet we have done,
And not be a whit the worse;
It never was loving that emptied the heart,
Nor giving that emptied the purse.*

THE great art of life is to play for much, and stake little.

If some men died and others did not, death would indeed be a most mortifying evil.

HUMAN nature readily falls into the mistake that those who are making the most fuss and noise in the world are doing the most work.

SOME men use no other means to acquire respect than by insisting on it; and it sometimes answers their purpose, as it does a highwayman's in regard to money.

EVERY man is ready to give in a long catalogue of those virtues and good qualities he expects to find in the person of a friend; but very few of us are careful to cultivate them in ourselves.

THERE is nothing more universally commended than a fine day; the reason is that people can commend it without envy.

WORRY.

*Do not hurry, do not flurry!
Nothing good is got by worry.*

LIFE.

*Live as in the light of day:
Nothing have to hide away.*

CHRISTIANITY.

*Christian names are every-where—
Christian men are very rare.*

FRETTING.

*Fretting mends no broken dishes,
Brings us none of all our wishes.*

YOU cannot treasure up too carefully good and beautiful thoughts, for they will colour your whole life.

FEW men have enough imagination to realise types of character altogether differing from their own.

OFFENDED.

*At ev'ry trifle scorn to take offence;
That always shows great pride, or little sense.*

FAULTLESS.

*Whoever thinks a faultless piece to see,
Thinks what ne'er was, nor is, nor e'er shall be.*

INFERENCES.

*When I see a person's name
Scratched upon a glass,
I know he owns a diamond,
And his father owns an ass.*

GREATNESS.

*Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.*

CONCEIT and confidence are both of them cheats; the first always imposes on itself, the second frequently deceives others too.

It is a short step from modesty to humility; but a shorter one from vanity to folly, and from weakness to falsehood.

DEFERENCE is the most complicated, the most indirect, and the most elegant of all compliments.

GREAT numbers of moderately good people think it fine to talk scandal; they regard it as a sort of evidence of their own goodness.

EVERYTHING may be mimicked by hypocrisy but humility and love united. The humblest star twinkles most in the darkest night. The more rare humility and love united, the more radiant when they meet.

MISUNDERSTOOD.

*Not to understand a treasure's worth,
Till time has stolen away the slighted good
Is cause of half the poverty we feel,
And makes the world the wilderness it is.*

A MAN has no more right to say an uncivil thing than to act one; no more right to say a rude thing to another than to knock him down.

THE most manifest sign of wisdom is continued cheerfulness: her estate is like that of things in the regions above the moon, always clear and serene.

PRUDENCE.

*Think all you speak, but speak not all you think.
Thoughts are your own;
your words are so no more.
Where wisdom steers, wind cannot make you sink.
Lips never err when Wisdom keeps the door.*

NOBODY wants to keep a runaway horse; but many keep a runaway temper, and think nothing of it.

LIFE is a journey, and it is generally our own fault if we do not make a pleasant excursion of it.

THERE is nothing keener longer than a middling fortune, and nothing melts away sooner than a great one. Poverty treads upon the heels of great and unexpected riches.

A CHEERFUL temper, joined with innocence, will make beauty attractive, knowledge delightful, and wit good-natured. It will lighten sickness, poverty, and affliction; convert ignorance into an amiable simplicity, and render deformity itself agreeable.

"SAY NO ILL OF THE YEAR TILL IT IS PAST."

LAUGHTER MAKES GOOD BLOOD.

A COUNTRY bridegroom, when the bride hesitated to pronounce the word "obey," remarked to the officiating clergyman, "Go on, measter—if don't matter; I can make her!"

Spirit of Beethoven: "What a noise!"—Spirit of Handel: "Yes, it's a terrible thing, all this music by anateurs."

Mrs. Youngusband: "I want some lamb."—Butcher: "Fore-quarter of lamb, ma'am?"—Mrs. Youngusband: "Well, no; I think three-quarters will be enough."

Proud Father: "That is a sunset my daughter painted. She studied painting abroad. You know."—Friend: "Ah; that explains it. I never saw a sunset like that in this country."

SOMETIMES you hear a man say, "My physician," with such an air of proprietorship that you would never dream that he owes the doctor £25, which the medical gentleman never expects to get.

He (pleadingly): "Why can't we be married?"
She (coolly): "Oh, I can't bear to leave father alone just yet." He (earnestly): "But, my darling, he has had you such a long, long time." She (freezingly): "Sir!"

Mrs. Grimes: "Your husband made a splendid speech at the meeting last night. How nice it must be to be married to such a gifted man." Mrs. Fluent: "And have to listen to rehearsal for two or three weeks before he makes his speech!"

A CERTAIN splendid lawyer once made an eloquent speech for a horse stealer. The jury, with tears, gave a verdict of "Not guilty." A friend stepped up to the prisoner and said, "Jim, the danger is past; didn't you steal that horse?" "Well, Tom, I thought I did, but since I heard my counsel's speech, I don't believe I did."

ROOKS are very aristocratic birds, as everybody knows. An ancient mansion had changed hands, and a report having reached the rooks that the newcomers bore the name of "Smith," the colony determined to depart. One curious bird, however, examined the labels on the luggage, and finding the name spelt with a "y," told his discovery to his fellows, with the result that they at least postponed their move.

"WHY did you leave your last place?" asked Mrs. Willoughby of the would-be cook. "I hovn't left my lasht place," replied the applicant. "I hovn't had any lasht place to leave: I've been workin' for meself for six months, an' I can recomind meself to yez very highly."

She: "Oh, dear! I found a grey hair in my head this morning." He: "You ought to be glad of it. If your hair should turn grey, it would soften the effect of those wrinkles you are getting."

Parkins (facetiously): "That is a picture of my wife's first husband." Smith: "Heavens! What a brainless-looking ass! But I didn't know your wife was married before she met you?" Parkins: "She wasn't. That is a picture of myself at the age of twenty."

Doctor: "Yes; the symptoms are very serious. You must go to bed at once, and I will call and see you twice a day." Patient: "In that case it's lucky I joined the club last week." Doctor: "A club case! Good gracious! Why didn't you say so? Take a pennyworth of Epsom salts; you'll be all right to-morrow."

AN OXFORD IDYLL.

*Ah, little mill, you're rumbung still,
At sunset streaked with gold!
Ah, deepening tinge, ah, purple fringe
Of tints as of old!
Ah, hawthorn hedge, ah, light-won pledge
Of kisses warm and plenty!
When she was true, and twenty-two,
And I was two-and-twenty,
I don't know how she broke her vow—
She said that I was "horly";
And there's the will-a-goin' still,
And I am five-and-forty.
And sooth to tell, 'twas just as well,
Her aitches were uncertain;
Her ways, though nice, not point-device;
Her father liked his "Burton."
But there's a place you cannot trace,
So spare the fond endeavour—
A cloudless sky, where Kate and I
Are twenty-two for ever.*

T. B. BROWN.

"DARLING," exclaimed the happy husband, after the minister had pronounced them one, "I am not worthy of your love." "Of course you're not," she replied; "but at my age a girl can't afford to let even an opportunity like this go by."

DURING a dense fog a large steamer had to cast anchor. A traveller came to the man at the wheel and asked why they stopped. "Too much fog. Can't see the river." "But you can see the stars overhead?" "Yes," replied the sailor; "but until the boiler bursts we ain't going that way!"

TOMMY has been making a study of etiquette. When his little sister was opening the door to leave the nursery, he pulled her back by the hair, and elbowed her out of the way. "Don't you know, you ignorant little beast," he said indignantly, "that it is a gentleman's place to open the door for a lady?"

"NOW I propose—" began Mr. Dinkey. He was interrupted at this moment by his auditor, Miss Girtton, who spoke substantially as follows:—"Mr. Dinkey, accuracy of language demands an explanation at this point. Do you use the word 'propose' as a synonym of 'purpose' or in its matrimonial sense?" Later developments showed that Mr. Dinkey used the word in its matrimonial sense.

At the Durham Assizes recently the plaintiff in a trifling case was a deaf woman, and after a little the judge suggested that the counsel should ask her what she would take to settle it. The counsel thereupon shouted out very loudly to his client, "His lordship wants to know what you will take?" She smilingly replied, "I thank his lordship kindly, and if it's no inconvenience to him I'll take a little warm ale."

A TELLER of clerical stories related not long ago that a very just complaint was once brought before a certain bishop that a clergyman in his diocese was wearing an Oxford master's hood, when, as a matter of fact, he had no such degree. "I call it, my lord," said the complainant, "wearing a lie on his back." "We need not use quite so strong a word, Mr. Smith," the bishop replied in his blandest manner, "call it a falsehood!"

IN a churchyard in Devonshire is this business-like epitaph: "Here lies Jane White, wife of Thomas White, stonemason. This monument was put up out of respect for her memory, and as a specimen of his workmanship. Tombs in the same style are to be had for £50."

A CLERK on a Bank Holiday excursion was spending an evening in a country inn full of company, and, feeling secure in the possession of most money, made the following offer:—"I will drop money into a hat with any man in the room. The man who holds out longest to have the whole and treat the company." "I'll do it," said one of the farmers present. The clerk dropped in a half-sovereign. The countryman followed with a sixpence. "Go on," said the clerk. "I won't," said the farmer; "take the whole, and treat the company."

SAID a sharp lawyer to a rambling witness, "Now, you must give explicit and exact answers. You said you drove a milk-cart, did you not?" "No, sir, I didn't." "Don't you drive a milk-cart?" "No, sir." "Aha! what do you do, sir?" "I drive a hoss, sir."

LAW SITTINGS, ECLIPSES, AND MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

INTEREST TABLE.

Without giving an elaborate series of tabulated figures to ascertain the interest due on any given sum at 2, 3, 5, or any other rate per cent., any person may calculate for himself the amount of interest by a very simple process.

The amount of interest upon one pound for every month at 5 per cent. is one penny. Having ascertained what any given sum amounts to at 5 per cent., other rates may be calculated by adding to or dividing it, thus: 6 months.

5 per cent. for £80 would be	£ 0 0
2½ per cent., which is one-half	0 0
3 per cent. is six-tenths	1 4 0
3½ per cent. is seven-tenths	1 8 0
4 per cent. is four-fifths	1 12 0

If the interest should be more than 5 per cent., then the extra rate of interest must be added. Thus for 6½ per cent. add one-fourth; for 7½ per cent. add one-half.

REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS, &c.

In England an infant must be registered within forty-two days of its birth. Responsible persons failing to do this without reasonable cause become liable to a penalty of forty shillings.

When a death takes place, personal information must be given to the registrar within five days. A certificate must be obtained to give to the clergyman performing the funeral service.

In Scotland a birth must be registered within 21 days; a marriage within three days; and a death within eight days.

THE CENSUS OF 1901.

The total number of persons returned as living in England and Wales at 12 p.m. on March 31st, 1901, was 32,526,075, the English portion being 30,805,466, and that of Wales 1,720,607; England showing an increase on the previous census of 12·1 per cent. and Wales one of 13·3 per cent.

In Scotland the enumeration was 4,472,000, being an increase of 11·09 per cent.

The Irish population—4,456,546—shows a decrease of 5·3 per cent. on the previous decade.

Four English counties have decreased during the past ten years, the remainder showing an increase in the following order of percentage:—Essex 38·2, Northumberland 19·1, Kent 18·3, Worcestershire 18, Derbyshire 17·5, Durham 16·8, Leicestershire 16·2, Surrey 16, Monmouthshire 15·8, Hampshire 15·7, Nottinghamshire 15·4, Staffordshire 13·9, Hertfordshire 13·7, Yorkshire (West Riding) 12·6, Lancashire 12·2, Northamptonshire 11·9, Cheshire 11·6, Warwickshire 11·5, Middlesex 10·3, Sussex 9·9, Yorkshire (North Riding) 9·1, Yorkshire (East Riding) 8·9, Berkshire 6·8, Bedfordshire 6·6, Gloucestershire 5·8, Buckinghamshire 5·5, Lincolnshire 5·5, Somersetshire 4·9, Devonshire 4·5, Dorsetshire 4·3, Suffolk 3·5, Wiltshire 3·3, Shropshire 1·3, Norfolk 1·2, Cambridgeshire 0·9, Cumberland 0·1, Cornwall, 0·1, Huntingdonshire 0·02. The four counties which show a decrease are Rutlandshire 4·6, Westmorland 2·7, Oxfordshire 1·6, and Herefordshire 1·3.

There are in the United Kingdom eighteen cities and towns with a population of more than 200,000, of which fourteen are in England, two in Scotland, and two in Ireland. Twenty-one other towns have a population of more than 100,000, seventeen being in England, two in Wales, and two in Scotland. Of the remaining large towns forty-six contain over 50,000 inhabitants, forty being English, two Welsh, three Scotch, and one Irish.

A glance at the following table will show the relative population of the component parts of the United Kingdom from the census of 1831:—

THE NEW ACT REGARDING ESTATE DUTY.

An alteration of considerable importance in our system of taxation—in the shape of a revision of the existing death duties—was proposed by Sir William Harcourt in introducing his Budget on the 16th of April, 1894, and became law on the 31st of July. It occupied the principal portion of the Finance Act, 1894 [57 & 58 Vict. ch. 30].

In consequence of this alteration the existing probate, account, estate, and succession duties cease to exist, and in their place a new duty, known as Estate Duty, is levied upon the principal value on all property which passes on the death of the owner, whether that property is real or personal, settled or unsettled.

The chief provisions relating to Estate Duty are as follows:—

Property out of the United Kingdom.—Property passing on the death of the deceased when situate out of the United Kingdom is included only, if, under the law in force before the passing of this Act, legacy or succession duty was payable in respect thereof, or would have been payable but for the relationship of the person to whom it passed.

Settled Property.—Where property in respect of which Estate Duty is leviable, is settled by the will of the deceased, or having been settled by some other disposition passes under that disposition on the death of the deceased to some person not competent to dispose of the property, a further Estate Duty (called Settlement Estate Duty) on the principal value of the settled property is levied at the rate hereinafter specified, except where the only life interest in the property after the death of the deceased is that of a wife or husband of the deceased; but during the continuance of the settlement the Settlement Estate Duty is not to be payable more than once.

Collection and Recovery of Estate Duty.—Where the executor of the deceased does not know the amount or value of any property which has passed on the death, he may state in the Inland Revenue affidavit that such property exists but he does not know the amount or value thereof, and that he undertakes, as soon as the amount and value are ascertained, to bring in an account thereof, and to pay both the duty for which he is or may be liable, and any further duty payable by reason hereof for which he is or may be liable in respect of the other property mentioned in the affidavit. Estate Duty, so far as not paid by the executor, is to be collected upon an account setting forth the particulars of the property, and delivered to the Commissioners (that is to say, the Commissioners of Inland Revenue) within six months after the death by the person accountable for the duty, or within such further time as the Commissioners may allow.

Reasonable Allowances.—In determining the value of an estate for the purpose of Estate Duty, allowances is to be made for reasonable funeral expenses, and for debts and encumbrances, etc.

Estimated Value.—The principal value of any property is to be estimated to be the price which, in the opinion of the Commissioners, such property would fetch if sold in the open market at the time of the death of the deceased.

Costs of Valuation.—Where the Commissioners require a valuation to be made by a person named by them, the reasonable costs of such valuation are defrayed by the Commissioners.

Postponed Payment.—Where the Commissioners are satisfied that the Estate Duty leviable in respect of any property cannot without excessive sacrifice be raised at once, they may allow payment to be postponed for such period, to such extent, and on payment of such interest not exceeding four per cent. or any higher interest yielded by the property, and on such terms, as the Commissioners think fit.

In the Case of Over-payment.—Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioners that too much Estate Duty has been paid, the excess is to be repaid by them, and in cases where the over-payment was due to over valuation by the Commissioners, with interest at three per cent. per annum.

Payment by Stamps or Otherwise.—The Estate Duty may be collected by means of stamps or such other means as the Commissioners prescribe.

For any who are not Satisfied.—Any person aggrieved by the decision of the Commissioners with respect to the repayment of any excess of duty paid, or by the amount of duty claimed by the Commissioners, whether on the ground of the value of any property or the rate charged or otherwise, may, on payment of, or giving security for, the duty claimed by the Commissioners or such portion of it as is then payable by him, appeal to the High Court within the time and in the manner and on the conditions directed by rules of Court, and the amount of duty is to be determined by the High Court, and if the duty as determined is less than that paid to the Commissioners the excess is to be repaid to the person complaining.

Scale of Rates of Estate Duty.—The rates of Estate Duty are according to the following scale:—

THE LIVE AND DEAD WEIGHT OF SHEEP.

In the following table we have a convenient means of ascertaining the dead weight of sheep. When using it, from the gross Live Weight of the Sheep deduct the estimated weight of the fleece and any extraneous matter adhering thereto, and seek in the table for the remainder only. When weighed without being fasted, deduct either from the Live or Dead Weight, if half fat, 7 per cent.; if moderately fat, 6 per cent.; if extra fat, 5 per cent.

HOW TO FORETELL THE WEATHER.

The undernoted Table, the result of many years of observation, will be found to be wonderfully accurate, but it must not be forgotten that there are many influencing causes which will derange the ensuing weather, and upset any predictions.

WHEN A MAN DIES WITHOUT LEAVING A WILL HOW IS HIS PROPERTY DIVIDED?

The following are the Rules by which the Personal Estates of English Persons, and the Movable Estates of such Persons dying without leaving a will, are distributed. No nearer relations are supposed to exist than those named. Where an asterisk (*) is prefixed the regulation applies only to Scotland.

It is to be observed that by the Intestates Estates Act (53 and 54 Vict. c. 29) a very important alteration has been recently made in the law as regards provisions for widows of men who die intestate, and without issue, after 1st September, 1890: it is enacted that if the real and personal estate together do not exceed £500, the whole is to go to the widow; if it exceeds £500, the widow is to have a charge on both proportionately for £500. The provision is to be in addition to her share of the residue. This does not apply to Scotland.

If the Intestate die, leaving

His representatives take in the proportion following:—

Wife only, no blood relations	Half to wife, the other half to the Crown.
Wife, no near relations	Half to wife, rest to next-of-kin in equal degree to intestate, or their legal representatives.
Wife and child, or children, and children of a deceased child	One-third to wife, rest to child or children; and if children are dead, then to the representatives (that is, their lineal descendants)
Wife and father	*One-third to wife; one-third to living children in equal shares; one-third equally among living children per capita and issue of dead children per stirpes .
Wife and mother	Half to wife, and half to father.
Wife, brother, or sister and children of a deceased brother or sister	*Half to wife; one-sixth to mother, two-sixths to Crown failing kin.
Wife, mother, nephews, and nieces	Half to wife, one-fourth to living brother or sister, one-fourth to deceased brother's or sister's children.
Wife, mother, brothers, sisters, and nieces (children of deceased brothers and sisters)	*Half to wife; one-sixth to brother, two-sixths equally among children of dead brother or sister.
No wife or child	Half to wife, one-fourth to mother, and other fourth to nephews and nieces per stirpes .
Children by one or more wives and the issue of deceased children	*Half to wife; one-sixth to mother, two-sixths among nephews and nieces per stirpes .
Husband and children	Half to wife, residue to mother, brother, sisters, and nieces.
Mother, but no wife, child, father, brother, sister, nephew, or niece	*Half to wife; one-sixth to mother, two-sixths among the brothers and sisters (who take per capita), and the nieces who take per stirpes .
Mother and brother	All to next-of-kin and their legal representatives.
Mother, and brothers and sisters	All children equally per capita , issue of deceased children per stirpes ; no difference between children of different wives.
Father, and brothers and sisters	*One half equally amongst all living children; the other half equally amongst living children per capita , and issue of dead children per stirpes .
Child and grandchild by deceased child	Whole to husband.
If no child, children, or representatives of them	The whole to mother.
Brother or sister, and children of a deceased brother or sister	*One-third to mother; two-thirds to the Crown failing kin.
Brother and grandfather	Equally.
Brother's grandson, and brother or sister's daughter	*Mother one-third; brother two-thirds.
Brother and two aunts	Whole to them equally.
Brother and wife	*Mother one-third; brothers and sisters two-thirds equally per capita .
Grandfather, no nearer relation	Whole to father.
Father's father, and mother's mother	*One-half to father, the other half equally amongst brothers and sisters per capita .
Grandmother, uncle, or aunt	Half to child, half to grandchild, who takes by representation.
Uncle, and deceased uncle's child	*Three-fourths to child, one-fourth to grandchild.
Uncle by mother's side, and deceased uncle or aunt's child	All to next-of-kin in equal degree to intestate.
Two aunts, nephew, and niece	Half to brother or sister per capita , half to children of deceased brother or sister per stirpes .
Uncle's or aunt's children, and brother's or sister's grandchildren	Whole to brother.
Nephew by brother, and nephew by half-sister	All to daughter.
Nephew by deceased brother, and nephews and nieces by deceased sister	All to brother.
		Half to brother, half to wife.
		All to grandfather.
		Equally to both.
		All to grandmother.
		*All to uncle or aunt if paternal.
		All to uncle.
		All to uncle.
		*Child of deceased paternal uncle or aunt takes conclusion of maternal uncle.
		Equally to all.
		*Nephew and niece.
		Equally to all.
		*Brother's or sister's grandchildren.
		Equally per capita .
		*All to nephew by brother.
		Each in equal shares per capita , and not per stirpes .
		*The same.

NOTE.—Per capita, that is, taking individually and not by representation. Per stirpes, that is, through descent and not in their own rights.
